Mavis has introduced a new fashion - clothes

After a long absence from her enclosure, Mavis has returned wearing clothes. These clothes were put on her by a human, but she has turned them into something totally different. Mavis has introduced cat kind to a new fashion - clothes.

The clothes are simple - just a vest that covers Mavis's belly and torso and has a Velcro strip at the top to keep it around Mavis. The clothes were originally a way for humans to make sure that Mavis didn't irritate her fur and skin after her possible spaying, but Mavis has gone over the top with the clothes. Pictures of her have been sent to at least 20 people, and all the local cat fashion shops are racing to make the first pair of clothes. There are teams of cat reporters swarming the Tiny Kittens facility in Canada, and there are multiple cameras trained on Mavis after some hardcore building break - ins.

Unfortunately, the clothes have also caused a bad effect. As seen in the images to the right and above, Mavis's kittens are arching their backs and staying away from her. North, a multi species behaviorist has a theory that the kittens almost don't recognize their mama because of the strange smell of the clothes and the look of them. Mavis is surely devastated, because these are the kittens that she birthed and suckled.

All four of Mavis's sisters, even Naya, agree that Mavis must feel very bad that her kittens treat her like a totally different cat. Stripy, Rudy, Judy, and Naya have all had kittens, and they know that it would feel horrible if their kittens turned on them like that. Any good mother would. They are sending Mavis catMails to her catPhone saying how bad they feel for her, but Mavis has stopped answering them. A secret camera shows her lurking in a corner, her face wet with tears. Any cat would feel sorry for her.

At the moment, there have been 10 sightings of cats wearing homemade clothes - there is even a competition to see who can make the best.

“I'd feel bad if my kittens treated me as if I was a stranger to them.”

- NAYA, SOMEWHAT RELUCTANTLY

Some of the cats wearing clothes include Harvey, Judy jr., and Rice. Even through hard times, Mavis has the support of her friends.

Clothes are a totally new thing to cats - they've never needed them. But Mavis has shown (not intentionally, of course) how cool clothes can be. She has probably inspired a whole new generation of cat kind to try new things.
