Mavis and Naya have been caught and arrested!

Yesterday, in the evening, Mavis and Naya were caught and arrested trying to steal another tricycle from a little human kitten (North had predicted this and loves to rub it in). They were unsuccessful, and the human kitten attempted to pet Mavis but got scratched instead. Then, in anger, the human kitten kicked Mavis hard, giving her 2 broken ribs. Naya drove the human kitten off, but by then they were surrounded by the police.

Mavis tried to plead guilty to the police as seen in the image above, but she would still get a 2 year sentence for escape attempt with Naya. Naya is looking at life or 5 year if she pleads guilty, but Naya is not one to grovel at another cat's feet. This is bad, because Mavis and Naya's kittens are bound to find out about their mothers' crimes because the trial will be publicized.

North, a multi species behaviorist, has predicted that the kittens will find out about the trial approximately 62 minutes after their sleep away camp ends. This approximation is based on how long it takes to drive into the city, where you can't miss the posters. The sleep away camp is on its fifth day, so the kittens are bound to find out about their mothers in just over 2 days' time.

Harvey, the cat who is acting as Mavis and Naya's kittens' temporary guardian is feeling overwhelmed. The kittens are curious about why their mamas didn't come to chaperone themselves. Harvey keeps telling them that they have a big surprise planned, but it hurts him to lie to kittens.

All of the cats who know Mavis and Naya are going to try to stand up for them and what they think is right. Stripy has a speech planned, and, if worse comes to worse, a plan to send Naya casserole every week. Mavis on the other hand has an unlimited supply of cabbage plant seeds, so she will be sent some pots and some soil. Unfortunately, Mavis thinks that baby cabbages taste slightly better than full cabbages so she will eat some of them as soon as there are little cabbages growing on the plant. Full cabbages are bigger though, so Mavis will eat most of them that way.
