
CATS ILLUSTRATED

Coffee has been hiding under blankets!

As seen in the image above, Coffee is hiding under blankets. This is odd behavior, even if you are talking about a cat who is scared of everything. But then again, that cat would be scared of the blanket, too. And a lot of other things. However, Coffee is the one hiding. This is concerning, especially to North, a multi species behaviorist. Coffee has never acted this way before - but, Makenna, Rudyjudy, and Reposado were just taken or moved. That thought leads to the thought that maybe Coffee is scared of getting adopted and being taken away from Harvey. That would scare any cat, even Naya.

Image above - Coffee hiding under blankets in a cupboard.

“Unfortunately, this is just not the behavior that you would see from a scared cat,” says North, a multi species behaviorist, “the cat wouldn’t eat, they would stay awake at night, not hide under blankets in the day, and eat more than you usually do. This is odd behavior - I will have to run some tests on Coffee if we are going to figure this out.”

Coffee, on the other hand, has just been hiding under blankets. It is starting to seem like his condition or feeling is getting worse over time. 2 days ago, Coffee looked like the photo on the page before this. Now, he looks like the photo to the right. This one is concerning. You can see Harvey looking at Coffee from the bottom right corner of the shot, but Coffee is as still as a dead body. This is not good.

Harvey has reluctantly agreed to let North run some tests on Coffee. Harvey is very concerned about Coffee, but North has kept away visitors until he has had time to run the necessary tests. North has an idea about how to get them to work.

The scanner will look like a large blanket. When Coffee tries to hide under it, the blanket will scan him for viruses, sickness, infection, mental damage, devices, and almost anything you can imagine. The scanner will automatically discard the unimportant parts of the scan and create a short report about how Coffee is doing and what North can do to help him (the machine cost half a billion dollars).

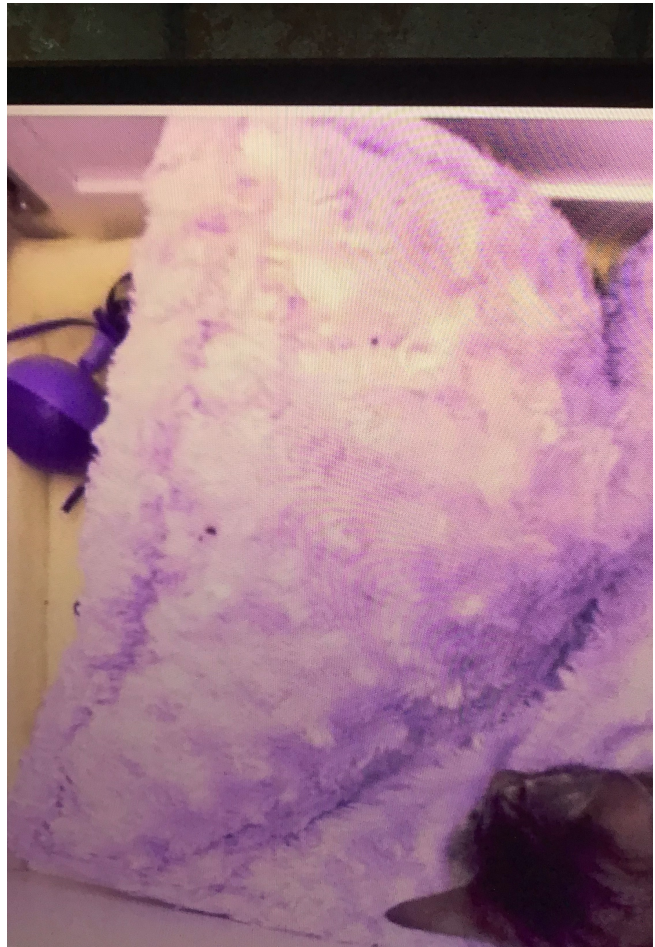

Image above - Coffee fully under blankets.

“Coffee’s my favorite cousin. I really hope that North can help him!”

- JUDY, ONE OF COFFEE’S COUSINS

The blanket has been dispatched into Coffee’s cupboard. A camera shows him crawling under it. His body movements are jerky, like a spider. North is looking very concerned, because that makes it look like Coffee is very sick. After the machine scans Coffee, North will do everything he can to get Coffee back to normal. Just now, the machine finished the scans. North has just checked the results. He seems nervous as he looks through them. Is something wrong?

Subscribe again to hear the results of these scans!