
CATS ILLUSTRATED

Stripy's catnappers located, but she isn't with them!

Late last night, after a tiring search, a team of rescuers found a device that one of Stripy's catnappers must have been using. The device was found in a ditch where the catnappers must have made camp, and there was evidence of bags of money sitting around in the dirt. A team of expert trackers tracked the scent of the device to the catnappers' new camp, and then attacked. The catnappers stood no chance against the axes and shovels, so they backed down and asked what the rescuers wanted to know.

Image above - two of Stripy's catnappers in a holding cell.

Mavis asked, “where is Stripy, the cat you catnapped! We want her back!”

The catnapper replied slyly, “you mean that cat? Well, my memory is not so good.” Mavis steps threateningly forward with her shovel, so the catnapper continues, “we sold her to some bandits who looked for pristine, pretty cats who would make good servants. Servants for the king, Lemon.”

Mavis dropped everything she was holding, as well as everybody else. Then, she made a dash for her tricycle. “Naya and our kittens are not safe!” Mavis called as she rode off into the night. The catnappers tried to make a move, but the other cats moved forward to tie them up. The catnappers went with it, and they were loaded into the trailer while 3 motorcycles struggled to haul the trailer down the road. Maybe Mavis should have stayed.

Soon enough though, Mavis had spread word of Lemon’s treachery to the city. She said that “he took my sister to be a servant! And she is raising kits!” This message was a powerful one, and it spoke to many cats, including Harvey who was too stunned to speak when he heard about what Lemon was doing. Harvey shut himself in his room and canceled all the therapy sessions that he would give for the next 2 days. Poor Harvey, it must be horrible to know that your brother is catnapping your niece to make her a servant.

“Lemon deserves life in prison for what he has made Harvey feel like!”

- NORTH, WHO DEEPLY CARES FOR HOW HARVEY FEELS.

Mavis is organizing a march on the capital city of the cats, Meowsinburg. If Lemon can’t listen to reason, he’ll listen to the sound of his palace being torn apart. He can’t just catnap cats to make them work for him, it just isn’t right. Mavis is making sure that this mission is stealthy, because Lemon’s imperial guards are trained in martial arts. Do Mavis and her cats stand a chance?

Subscribe again to find out everything!

Image above - Lemon, that traitor.