

---

CATS ILLUSTRATED

---

Juliet is still addicted to Kudo's!

After dinner last night, a camera caught Juliet sneaking behind the food bowls to eat Kudo's. Many cats have thought that her addiction is over, but actually, the way that Mavis solved the problem was to take away her stash. However, Juliet must have somehow gotten more, which is not good for her health. The Kudo's have a sky - high calorie count, and Juliet is already eating a whole lot - she doesn't need the extra calories of the Kudo's. Kudo's look like a flattened cheese puff, and they taste sweet and salty at the same time, because they contain a whole lot of sodium - salt, and sugar too. It's harder to stop eating Kudo's, because any cat would like them. Literally. That is how they were designed. As such, it would be harder for Juliet to stop eating them than it would be to just not eat them in the first place. A lot of cats are a little ticked off at Juliet because of this, especially Makenna, a dietary scientist.

Image above - Juliet sneaking behind the food bowls to snack on some Kudo's a very junky snack.

---

Makenna, a dietary scientist, has an opinion about this topic. “Eating Kudo’s was more okay when Juliet was actively suckling kittens, but now that they are weaning, the extra calories will not be used to produce milk. As such, Juliet will face gaining a lot of weight. She really needs to stop eating Kudo’s.”

At this point, many cats are wondering where Juliet gets all of these Kudo’s from. I mean, you can’t just walk into any store and buy 20 bags of Kudo’s right there. So, Mavis decided to send Reposado to spy on Juliet at all times. Reposado would watch Juliet until her Kudo’s ran out. And in good time, they did.

Early this morning, Juliet snuck out of bed, and walked out behind her house. There, there were 3 cats waiting quietly. One of them stood up to talk to Juliet in a lowered voice. “Do you have the milk?” The cat said in Juliet’s ear. Juliet nodded, and produced 3 full bottles of her own milk and gave them to the cat. Then, in return, the cat gave Juliet 3 bags of Kudo’s. Juliet was sneaking back when Reposado stopped her.

Image above - an earlier photo of Juliet eating some Kudo’s behind the food and water bowls.

“What does Juliet think she is doing, giving her milk away to other cats?”

- JUDY, WHO BELIEVES THAT A MOTHER’S MILK SHOULD BE FOR HER KITTENS.

“What are you doing?” Reposado asked Juliet in a hushed tone, “giving your milk to that male cat? Why would you do that for Kudo’s? It’s like posting your personal information on the internet!”

Juliet shakes her head. “The male cats were wandering the street one day, and one of them saw a newborn kitten. It must have been weak, because the mother had thrown it out. They took it in, but they didn’t have any milk to give it. So they looked around and eventually found me. I did it in exchange for Kudo’s.”

Subscribe again to hear more of this story!