
CATS ILLUSTRATED

Judy is starting to build up money again!

Ever since all of her kittens got part time jobs, Judy is starting to build up money again. Max, her mate has just gotten back from his trip to see family, and now he can go back to working with Judy at their film company, their family business. Judy still hasn't quit her part time job at Burger Cat however, because she was promoted to a waiter. This is good news, and now Judy's family can finally start thinking about that new, reasonably priced house that Judy toured yesterday. It is big, with 3 bedrooms, a nice kitchen, and a large living room, and 2 toilets in different parts of the house. The toilets are a new invention, and to have 2 in a house is super fancy. With all of their jobs bringing in money, Judy and her family can pay for the house. In fact, Judy is probably off making that deal right now. All cats agree that it is so nice to see her lifestyle back on track. So, with her own house, Judy doesn't have to pay rent every month, and nobody can kick her out.

Image above - Judy, taking a tour of a reasonably priced house that she and her kittens and Max are thinking of moving into.

Mavis is still a little annoyed that Judy didn't tell her before about her financial problems. I mean, Mavis is her sister after all. Shouldn't they share the problem? When Mavis first heard, she actually got mad that Judy didn't tell her. Luckily, Judy prepared for this. Harvey, swaying under the weight of 10 sandbags, plopped down on Mavis, crushing her long enough for Judy to make a getaway.

However, there has been a problem of theft recently around the house that Judy wants to move into. So, Judy has bought 10 small cameras that will blend in with the walls, and today she was casually sticking them on the walls as her first precaution for her new house. Then outside, on the deck Judy put out a stool with a glass case on top of it. In the case was a diamond ring, but Judy trapped the areas around it. However, Judy learned this trick from a spy book. The ring was plastic, but there was a little device inside the stone on the ring that made it shine like a diamond. Just a little diversion from the real prize, which was Judy's pendant.

Image above - Judy, sneaking around and casually fitting a small security camera onto the wall every once and a while.

“No wonder Ice’s grades are dropping, he doesn’t sleep, at least not at night!”

- MAX, WHO IS OBSERVANT

Judy’s kittens got into the security mindset too, because they made their shared bedroom into a war zone. At all times, one kitten was monitoring all of Judy’s security cameras after Ice hacked in, including the one in the hallway. They had a secret knock, and each kitten had hour long shifts watching the cameras. There were always 2 guards at the door, 2 in and 2 out, all holding weapons. 1 kitten could sleep at a time, and 1 kitten had a break, but had to be awake at all times. However, all of Judy’s kittens were happy that they moved, even if most of them slept 1 or 2 hours at night.

Subscribe again for more on the cats you love!