Harvey and North are play fighting!

In the incredible video above, Harvey and North were seen play fighting with each other pretty roughly. This is odd behavior for them both - Harvey and North don't usually play this much at a time. And, this video is priceless footage of what some cats call "rare Harvey" which means that these positions don't happen often with Harvey. However, both Harvey and North are being interviewed because of this incredible feat of play fighting. Harvey has expressed that "I felt like getting my body moving, and it was a great way to bond with North. However, I might have accidentally dislocated North's left front paw, and I don't feel too good about that."

North, on the other hand is feeling a little embarrassed about the play fighting. He said "while we were play fighting, Smoke was filming the think with his catPhone. I don't think it'll be too good for my reputation, because people don't want to hang around with a cat who got beat up by a grandfather age cat. However, once those cats see who I was play fighting with close up, they'll congratulate me for lasting that long."

“I’m no behaviorist,” says Mavis, a former supervisor for North, “but I know enough to say that Harvey and North felt the call of the wild coursing through their veins. Or maybe not. Maybe my puzzlement was the thing that flunked that behavior exam... - but wow! Harvey has proven to be a formidable fighter, by fighting and beating Lemon and North.”

That sure is true! However, Harvey claims to have learned all his battle moves from a civil war video game with no rifles or guns after a couple of tweaks to the game by Ice, who Harvey hired to change it. But still, it’s really cool to see Harvey, 8 year old Harvey, up and moving, getting his blood pumping again!

After North’s battering, Naya stepped up and asked if Harvey would play fight with her. Harvey agreed, and Naya let a nasty grin spread across her face. However, that grin disappeared when the fight started. Determination took its place. Harvey and Naya circled each other. Suddenly, Harvey leaped, and Naya dodged.

However, Harvey moved to the right with precision and when Naya came to meet him (eventually) he slid under her front paws, heaved her in the air, and slammed her down somewhat gently. And then, before Naya could react, Harvey pinned her down with both chubby forelegs. Naya didn’t struggle. She just gaped. The thoughts going through her mind were “who is this cat?”

“I officially apologize to Harvey for all the times I called him a geezer.”

- NAYA, WHO’S DUMBSTRUCK BY HARVEY’S FIGHTING SKILLS

Harvey let Naya go and walked away nonchalantly. Mavis however, was thinking back to other memories of cats that she had wrestled with. She eventually thought of a match. But no. It couldn’t be true. Could it be possible, just a little bit possible, that Harvey was The Muscle, the only wrestler that Mavis had ever been defeated by, the only wrestler that had more trophies than her! Could it be Harvey? However, Mavis didn’t have time to think before she passed out.
