
CATS ILLUSTRATED

Naya has canceled her date with North!

Last night, North got a phone call from Naya. It was about canceling their date. She told him that maybe she wasn't the right cat for him. At the end, she even said something strange. Naya told North halfheartedly to, "have fun on your date." North, confused, hung up the phone. Harvey happened to walk into the room at that time, and he could immediately see (not by reading North's mind) that something was amiss. "What's wrong?" Harvey asked, and then gently guided North into his therapy session room and pushed him into a beanbag.

North seemed to sag even lower in the beanbag chair. "Naya canceled our date." He told Harvey in a low, sad tone. Harvey nearly jumped back a pace. He knew how much Naya liked North. He didn't think that she would cancel their date on a whim, even if she found out about North's despicable grades in 6th grade and the fact that he had to spend 2 weeks in summer school. "What did she say," Harvey pressed North. He needed to know that Naya at least had a good reason.

"Well," North started, head still drooping low, "she greeted me in a low, sad tone, and then got straight to the point. Naya told me that maybe she wasn't the right cat for me, and that maybe another cat would fill that spot. Then, she said something very strange indeed..." North paused, and Harvey leaned in closer to hear this juicy piece of information, "Naya told me to have fun on my date. Then I hung up."

Harvey leaned back in the armchair he had sunk into. Harvey could hear it straining under his weight. However, it helped him think. And soon enough, he came to a conclusion.

"North," Harvey said, "I think someone tried to get in the way of you and Naya." North started to object, but Harvey shook his head at North. "Just listen to me," Harvey told North, and North fell silent. "Think about this. You get a call from Naya, and she's so sad that she wants to cancel your date. That wouldn't happen unless Naya thinks that you have more important things to do or another cat that you are going out with. And then, at the end, Naya tells you to enjoy your date. Well, she just canceled it, and you don't have another date, do you North?" Harvey looked at North with a hard stare, and North shook his head. "Well," Harvey continued, "I think that we should go to Naya's house and work all of this out. Who told Naya that you have another date? And why did they tell her that?" Harvey turned to North.

"North, we're going to figure this out together. You're date is going to be re - scheduled."
