
CATS ILLUSTRATED

Harvey is getting better, but the strange cat is attacking!

After quite a while in dormancy, the strange cat is finally making their move. However, though the suits were made a while ago, Mavis and Harvey still have their armor that was made with only living material. Speaking of Harvey, he has gotten better now that he knows that the Jeep is at the repair shop. Somehow, he paid the bill for the Jeep. But now, Harvey is distracted by something. He has been muttering about Jeeps and North and money and cats are starting to think that he hasn't made a full recovery. But Harvey stopped his mutterings soon enough, and cats let it pass.

Image above - Harvey, who's up and alert now.

Cats at the palace knew something was wrong when they saw 2 guards lying in the garden, unconscious. They were in full armor, which meant that they were sitting ducks for the strange cat. The next sign was some small rocks and stones hovering in midair. And then, the strange cat themselves stepped out of some bushes, with a massive rock held up in midair. And with a flick of their wrist, the strange cat shot the rock at the palace door.

Some smart cats had started barricading the door when they saw the signs of the strange cat. There was a massive bookshelf, 5 tables, and an anchor holding the door in place. Even so, it shook with impact. However, the materials blocking the door were not being controlled by some telekinetic force. Maybe the strange cat's powers were partly based on sight. But at this rate, the door would be down within 5 minutes. Cats turned and fled. In the very center of the palace though, Mavis and Harvey were rallying a force of 200 cats, wearing nothing and carrying no catPhones. Mavis and Harvey were in their reed armor, and were commanding well.

The platoon of cats marched through the palace to the front door, where the bookshelf, the tables, and the anchor were starting to move. Suddenly, it all crashed down and there stood the strange cat, rock in the air, ready to strike. "Charge!" Harvey shouted, and all of the cats charged. The strange cat hurled the rock toward the charging cats, who parted with practice to let the rock fly through. The rock however kept flying fast, and one cat jumped on to take a message to other cats in the palace.

"Yes, it can take up to 3 cats to pin one cat's chubby forelegs to the ground."

- JUDY, WHO'S STUDIED CHUBBY FORELEGS

The charge's effect was powerful. First Mavis and Harvey fell on top of the strange cat, and then came 199 more cats. Someone blindfolded the strange cat, supergluing the blindfold to the strange cat's eyes. Then, 3 cats pinned their chubby forelegs. Harvey sat on the strange cat's belly, restricting breath. The strange cat could still breath, but if they were going to attack, they would need more breath.

Subscribe again for more on this exciting topic!

Image above - Lunch, who's fondly remembering that very first charge.