
CATS ILLUSTRATED

A new Ice Cream shop has opened up!

Yesterday, Rebecca's Ice Cream shop announced its grand opening. Many cats came, including Harvey, who heard that they were giving out free Ice Cream. Harvey however was quite disappointed when he found out that it was just one cone for each cat. But he shrugged it off and just bought a few more cones for himself. This was good news for Rebecca, the owner of the Ice Cream shop. She hadn't been sure if her homemade Ice Cream would be to any cat's taste. Also, Mavis had decided to take a break and she joined all the people enjoying their free Ice Cream. Mavis walked up to the counter of the shop, and like at every Ice Cream shop, asked if they had cabbage Ice Cream. To her great surprise, the cat at the counter asked whether she would

Image above - Rebecca, the owner of the new Ice Cream shop.

like it in a cup or a cone. Mavis said cone, still dazed by this realization. Gawking, Mavis told the cat at the counter that she would like to see the owner of the shop. The cat at the counter pointed her toward the back, and Mavis left quickly but not before dropping a twenty into the cat's paws.

Rudy and Judy, on opposite sides of the Ice Cream shop, were each silently plotting. Rudy had been visiting many houses recently, looking for a large one that would make her seem superior with her slightly larger Chubby forelegs. Judy was researching drugs that could make her chubby forelegs larger than Rudy's. She had found nothing, except a bunch of drug dealers claiming to have exactly what she needed. Judy felt defeated. Then, she thought that maybe she could trick Rudy in some way. Judy stepped out of the Ice Cream shop to begin plotting Rudy's demise.

In the back of the Ice Cream shop, Mavis met Rebecca, the owner. And Mavis started talking all at once. "I've never been to an Ice Cream shop that served cabbage Ice Cream ever and cabbage is my favorite food but I have never had it in Ice Cream form and could I buy it in bulk or could you let me have it discounted but then again you wouldn't just do that so I'll work for you and you'll pay me cabbage Ice Cream which would be fair pay but how much of it do you have because I go through 5 to 6 cabbages in a day?" Mavis was out of breath. "Um, let's discuss this a little later," Rebecca told Mavis, "but in the meantime, I think that you can get another cone if you want." Mavis fist bumped the air and ran out of the room. What a strange cat, Rebecca thought. However, if this cat was buying her Ice Cream, so what if she was a bit strange. A buyer is a buyer, and that is what really mattered.

"Wow - Cabbage Ice Cream! I have never ever heard of anything remotely similar to that!"

- HARVEY, WHO IS SURPRISED FOR GOOD REASON

Subscribe again for more on Rebecca and her Ice Cream shop!

Image above - Juliet, who couldn't quite make it to the Ice Cream shop's grand opening.