Is Harvey really dead?

Since Harvey was declared dead, cats are starting to wonder things like, “Harvey’s heart just stopped beating. But what if it started again?” And also, “I’d like to go over to the hospital myself to take a look.” In fact, over 4 dozen cats showed up at the front doors of the hospital claiming to be highly advanced medical professionals. But the hospital staff knew this wasn’t true when one of Lunch’s kittens was spotted in the crowd of cats. Ice however, was ushered in immediately through a back door. He had called the hospital saying that he had something he needed to discuss.

“When I went to the jail,” Ice was addressing 3 of the hospital staff, North, Makenna, and Naya, who was trying to keep North company. “The thief cat had this with them and I took it,” Ice continued, holding up the small vial so that the hospital staff could see the label. “I would like to know what American red flower nectar does.”

The senior doctor of the hospital staff stood up and stretched. “Come with me, Ice. This matter should be discussed privately.” Ice followed the doctor into a side room, where they spoke to him in a hushed tone. “If Harvey was exposed to the red flower nectar, and this is what caused his drop of health, Harvey is not dead. But the state he is in could be called worse. Right now, Harvey is trapped within his own mind, doing something almost like playing a video game. In Harvey’s mind right now, there are 2 sides right now. The good side, and the infected side. The infected side is sending monsters to the good side, where Harvey, in his own mind, is fighting them. The only way to get out of his prison is to defeat the infected side entirely. He would wake up then. However, the state Harvey is in right now, seemingly dead, would be how he stayed for eternity if he were defeated by the monsters in his mind. But, even though your medical friend couldn’t detect any sign of life, Harvey does have a very faint pulse. There is only one spot to hear any sign of a pulse on an infected cat’s body. Each spot is specific to the cat.” The doctor paused speaking and turned to Ice. “We can't revive Harvey, that is the hard part, but we can monitor what is going on in his mind. It would almost be like a movie, but with much higher stakes. We could tell North that you made a movie about Harvey to make him feel better. If Harvey loses though, we'll have to tell North the truth.” Ice nodded, and then went to tell North, Makenna, and Naya about the movie while a team of doctors and nurses brought in the mind monitor and a large projector. North, Naya, and Makenna were too grief ridden to even notice when a couple of doctors attached some pads to Harvey's head, and then started the machine.
