

CATS ILLUSTRATED

It's Lunch's Birthday!

Today, June 4th 2021 is Lunch's birthday. As of 8:38 A.M. this morning, she is 3 years old. Lunch is very proud of this, as it means that she is as old as her other sisters, Mavis, Naya, Stripy, Rudy, and Judy. They are all 3 years old, approaching 4. However, even though they won't be the same age number in 2 months, Lunch is still proud to be able to call herself a 3 year old cat along with Mavis and her other sisters.

Image above - Lunch, who's already up and ready to greet the day.

Lunch's Luncheon offered a special deal because it was Lunch's birthday. The deal said that because it was a special day for Lunch, it would be a special day for lunch. Any lunch meal you ordered around lunchtime (11:00 A.M - 2 P.M.) was half off. Harvey was already on the phone reserving a table, as his precious sugar fries counted as a Lunch meal. Lunch reserved a table for him, and also reserved a large batch of sugar fries for him. Mavis came by to drop off some gifts from her and Naya, and Judy came by with some gifts from her, Rudy, and both of their kittens. Of course, Harvey brought a gift. However, as much as Lunch appreciated Harvey thinking of her, she didn't think there was much use for a Jeep toy that dispensed sugar.

Lunch is having a great day so far, but when she got a break in the morning from working at Lunch's Luncheon, she raced back to her house with Jake and her kittens to open their and her sisters' gifts. Lunch opened Mavis and Naya's gifts, carefully setting aside a coffee machine for her Luncheon and a half used gift card for The Wish for Fish (you can guess who sent that gift). Rudy and Judy had each gotten her different sets of new, shiny cutlery, and Lunch was happy about that. She had recently had to throw out some forks that were notched and grimy.

Image above - Lunch's chubby foreleg. Just because.

After opening her sisters' gifts, Lunch started on the gifts from Jake and her kittens. There was a new video game console from Jake, who knew that Lunch sometimes snuck out of bed at night to play on her kittens' console. Lunch always claimed that she wanted to play super violent shooting games, but Jake had only seen her on Mario Kart. Lunch's kittens had each contributed a piece of candy, which happened to be different colors of the rainbow. Lunch looked fondly at her kittens, and then wrapped them in a hug.

“I have not seen falcons in a while, but this might be one by the looks of it.”

- MAVIS

This is not all what happened on Lunch's birthday, however. At 11:22 in the morning, when Lunch was working at her Luncheon, something black, feathery, and wearing what was it? Striped pajamas? Went flying through the back window of Lunch's Luncheon.

Subscribe again for a new threat!