

CATS ILLUSTRATED

The fight is ending!

As the bomber planes fired relentlessly at the soldiers, tanks, and armored police vehicles, one lowly soldier made a lucky shot that ended the fight. Their rifle was pointed up at the bomber plane's wing, but as they were shooting, another soldier cat jostled them and the shot went wide. However, it did hit the other bomber plane in the front, completely destroying the engine and gun mechanisms. The plane suddenly dropped, its wing catching the other bomber plane and sending it to crash in a tree. The first bomber plane crashed on the ground, right in the middle of all of the soldiers. The other bomber plane crashed next, and when the bombers got out, they put their paws up.

Image above - Mavis, who was listening and did not hear anymore gunfire.

Just now, the police chief made the call that all bombers had been killed or taken into custody, and many cats came out of their basements to look outside. There was a lot of wreckage from the bomber planes, but it wasn't hard for cats to move aside the wreckage and clear the road. Also, the doomsday prepper count in the city dropped by an astonishing 89 percent. Many cats went out of their houses for a walk, and met up with friends. Here are some interviews with some of those cats.

"I am so glad that the bombers have been captured or killed," says Naya, who had to be persuaded to do this interview by her kittens, "now I don't have to worry about a bomb being dropped on my house in the middle of the night! I don't have to sleep in my musty and dank basement! I don't have to eat shelf stable mystery protein bars for my only food -" we have taken the microphone away from Naya, now, but you get how she feels.

Today, Lunch reopened her Luncheon and had a special deal on the menu. However, it didn't attract too many cats. They were still a bit paranoid about the bombing, and "buy a dish with explosive flavors, get a dessert free", didn't really help. However, Lunch is going to install a patio in the back with open air seating. She had a cover for when it rained, but it would be a nice place to eat during summer, as of the fact that summer basically repelled rain.

"Do sugar fries count as a dessert, or are they just a side on the menu?"

- HARVEY, WHO WOULD ORDER TONS OF DISHES WITH EXPLOSIVE FLAVORS FOR FREE SUGAR FRIES

There was one bad thing that came from the bombings ending. Turk, a 6 year old cat, had gone back to prepping for doomsday. He was interviewed a few hours ago by a reporter, and commented that because the bombings were bad, the kept the really bad things away. But now, those really bad things could come as they pleased. Cats feel sorry for Turk, because they doubt that there would be more bombings like this in his lifetime.

Subscribe again for new stuff!

Image above - Judy, after taking a walk with Rudy and plotting something with her.