

CATS ILLUSTRATED

Judy's kittens are getting shots and they are not happy!

While police try to sort out what to do with the computer chip they found that had been projecting the call from Rudy and Judy's attacker, another issue has arisen. Judy's kittens, the oldest of any of Judy's sisters' kittens, have reached the age where they need to get a COVID-19 vaccine shot. Kittens hate shots. Even nearly fully grown kittens, such as Ice and his siblings. However, even though Ice already has a full time job as a detective, he was not old enough to have the COVID-19 vaccine shot until now, along with his 6 siblings. They have all taken the news differently. In a way.

Image above - Ice and Judy, talking about the COVID-19 vaccine shots that Ice and his siblings will have to get.

"Why can't we take a pill, or some medicine, or get a nostril spray instead of a shot?" Judy jr. has expressed, as she is not happy about getting a shot, “why does it have to be a shot? I want a vaccine, but not a shot! Please, no shots!” Judy has her paws full already, and Max has wisely chosen to go on an errand.

“I don’t need a shot, or a vaccine!” Sir Maximus the second has proclaimed, “I shall fight valiantly through sickness on my brave steed! Not even the wind, let alone viruses could catch me! Well I suppose I could catch them... But no shots are needed for a knight! At least a knight in training.” Cats have grown very bored and tired of hearing Sir Maximus the second proclaim that shots were not worthy of him over and over. One of the hospital staff pulled out a needle and started moving toward Sir Maximus the second, and he wisely chose to leave the room and stop proclaiming stuff.

“Any one who tries to stick a needle in my chubby foreleg will get a kick to the noggin,” Maxine has claimed, cracking her knuckles, “because I don’t need shots, I don’t want shots, I’ll never need shots, and I’ll never want shots. So, don’t. Give. Me. SHOTS!!!” Maxine’s outburst has woken up some patients, and the hospital staff were about to call security when Judy tackled Maxine out the door of the hospital, went back in, closed the door, and locked it. Judy was mad, and for good reason.

Image above - Judy, who had to take refuge on the counter and is glowering down at her kittens.

“I only get this quote, I’ve got to say something quick - darn it, my time’s up!”

- MAY, ONE OF JUDY’S KITTENS AND WHO ONLY GOT THIS QUOTE

Hazel is the only one of Judy’s kittens who is even open to a shot. There wasn’t time to interview all of them. However, here is Hazel speaking. “I don’t enjoy the thought of a shot, but I can vaguely remember getting one as a very young kitten. It didn’t feel so bad, and I felt wonderful afterwards with that weight off my back. It’s really not half as bad as it sounds. It’ll be fine, and when I’m done, I’ll feel better than I would if I had never gotten the shot.” Harvey, a therapist, is very impressed with Hazel’s tone, and how her words got her siblings to be okay with shots. Harvey could use a second therapist.

Subscribe again for exciting news!