CATS ILLUSTRATED

We got you!

Did you really believe that we were taking a break! Well, we aren't! It was such a good joke! Haha!!!

Now, however, quite a few cats are not very happy with our little deception. There is a small mob outside the doors of our headquarters with signs, and some angry calls have come in from Mavis and Harvey about getting their gifts to us back. Too bad - the cabbage ice cream went fast, and the sugar cubes were a hit in our morning, afternoon, and evening coffee.

"Sweet deception," says North, a multi species behaviorist, "it's one of the most fun things to behold." North has been in on this from the beginning, as he is doing an experiment to see what would happen when something quite large and important (like Cats Illustrated) took a break. It went well, and North's project was sent to some regional science finals. It also turned out pretty great for us, as North paid us quite a bit. We now have new cameras and special devices designed to hear conversations through walls. Multiple walls, in fact.

The only cat who approved of this (besides North) was Naya, who loves how deceptive we were. She offered to pay us 5 dollars to do it again, but 5 dollars could only pay for a couple candy bars, not all of the windows that would be smashed after cats found out about another joke we pulled. Also, today in public, Mavis called together 15 cats for a peaceful protest against anymore of our jokes. Lunch was not present, or Judy, as they both had come down with a bad cough.

That leads us to our next bit topic. In recent times, new variants of the original COVID virus have started to come back. Max and Jake, Judy and Lunch's mates, didn't want to tell them yet, but it is possible that they have caught one of the COVID - 19 variants. They wouldn't be too strongly affected, but Lunch and Judy's kittens have been taken to different houses just in case. It is bad news, and doctors are wondering if they need to give cats another shot of vaccine as a booster.

“Good GOD those sugar cubes cost 50 dollars a box!”

- HARVEY, WHO HAS SHOWN SOMETHING A BIT LIKE A TEMPER IN THE TIME THAT HE HAS KNOWN ABOUT OUR JOKE

For now, nothing has changed, but it is possible that there will be a large surge in COVID - 19. If there is, lots of things, such as the Catolympics, which are due to start this coming week, will have to be postponed, or might just not allow any fans. That would be a disappointment, as many cats are looking forward to the Catolympics, and will be cheering on Mavis, who has made it into the medal round for professional tricycle racing. Her sisters, kittens, and many more cats will cheer her on.
