CATS ILLUSTRATED

Sports have begun in the Catolympics!

Now, after a couple days of Catolympics, the first medals have been awarded for fencing, skateboarding, and trampolining. Lunch's kittens watched the trampolining, and unfortunately it gave them some ideas. However, Jake is not okay with getting another trampoline to bounce back and forth with. Lunch's kittens settled for that and Jake had to stop them from doing flips instead. Naya watched some skateboarding, made some bad comments about the contestants, and then tried some out on her own. It didn't go too well, and Naya stomped off with some parting insults at no one in particular.

Many other sports started their qualifying rounds, such as soccer, basketball, and track and field. Rudy and her kittens watched one of the qualifying soccer games, which Nigeria won 2 - 1 over Singapore. However, most cats were looking forward to watching Mavis in 3 days - she might earn a medal in tricycle racing. Now that would be a sight to see and very popular with her kittens and other kittens in general in the neighborhood.

However, while some cats can relax and watch the Catolympics, Lunch's condition has not improved. Doctors are taking the opportunity to monitor Lunch's condition, and have gotten many very important samples in order to fight to lambda variant that Lunch has caught. The regular medicine for COVID - 19 was given to Lunch, but didn't seem to have an impact. That means that this is a strong variant, that is immune to the cure and vaccine for COVID - 19.

So far, no other cats have come down with the lambda variant in the area. There are a couple of cases up in the next county, Lunch is the only one in this county. That is good, because then Lunch can be isolated and cured, getting no other cats sick in the process. However, while her condition is stable, Judy is having a very bad cough, sore throat, and shortness of breath. Max brought her to the hospital for a checkup just today, and it turns out that she does have COVID - 19, but only the gamma variant, which is a bit rare, as the delta variant is the most common. However, it seems that she has been sick for a long time, so Judy was put into the intensive care ward with an oxygen mask. A ventilator was nearby just in case.

Luckily, while we fear for Judy and Lunch with their different types of COVID - 19, something good has arisen. In recent times, there has just been a big construction site on
