
CATS ILLUSTRATED

The Catolympics are continuing!

As the Catolympics continue, more than half of the sports are done with their whole competition. However, things like soccer, basketball (yes, cats have basketball), handball, and water polo (which doesn't have a large amount of players as of the fact that most cats despise water), still have the semifinals and the gold and bronze matches to go.

In soccer there have been very many upsets, and this year, a newer team, from Senegal, has dominated the group stage, and then the quarterfinals and semifinals. They set a record for most goals scored in a single game, with a shocking 14. They just played and won their semifinal game, 3 to 1. They will be in the gold medal match, and are expected to win.

Image above - Harvey, who has been able to watch a little wrestling but really wants to see the gold medal match tomorrow.

However, 2 other teams are looking very good, too. England and China have also had very many good wins, with a 2-1-0 record each in their group stage. They will fight hard to see who will get into the gold medal match. The last of the 4 teams in the semifinals, Argentina, had a 1-1-1 record in the group stage and just slipped through in to the quarterfinals, with they won on penalties 2 - 1. They were easily defeated by Senegal, and are in the bronze medal match.

Now, enough about soccer. In Mavis's second even, tricycle freestyle, she actually won a medal, a bronze medal, with a surprisingly good score of 87.90. Her rival had won silver, with the cat expected to win, in gold. Mavis should be extremely proud of her performance, cause a gold medal and a bronze medal could have easily been a silver medal and no other medals.

However, while cats continue to watch the Catolympics, Lunch has not gotten any better. She is still sick with COVID - 19, and in a coma, and has not shown any change in health. Lunch's kittens send Lunch short coding animations that they made, even though she couldn't watch them. However Jake stopped letting Lunch's kittens send the animations, however, after he thought about what would happen if Lunch had to watch sets of 6 similar animations in a row after she woke up - if she woke up. It might be better for her health not to see those animations right after she woke up - if she woke up. The animations are good, but Lunch would need to take it easy in the time after she woke up.

"If there was a competition for most hours slept in a row, I think Harvey would win."

- RUDY, DIRECTING THIS AT JUDY

Well, cats could say that this was a Catolympics to remember, with a friend getting 2 medals, a gold and a bronze, in tricycle racing. Who knew that Mavis superpower on a tricycle would someday win her a gold and a bronze medal? If you looked at old photos of Mavis, you could see her on a tricycle at 2 or 3 months of age!

Subscribe again for more on the murder case!

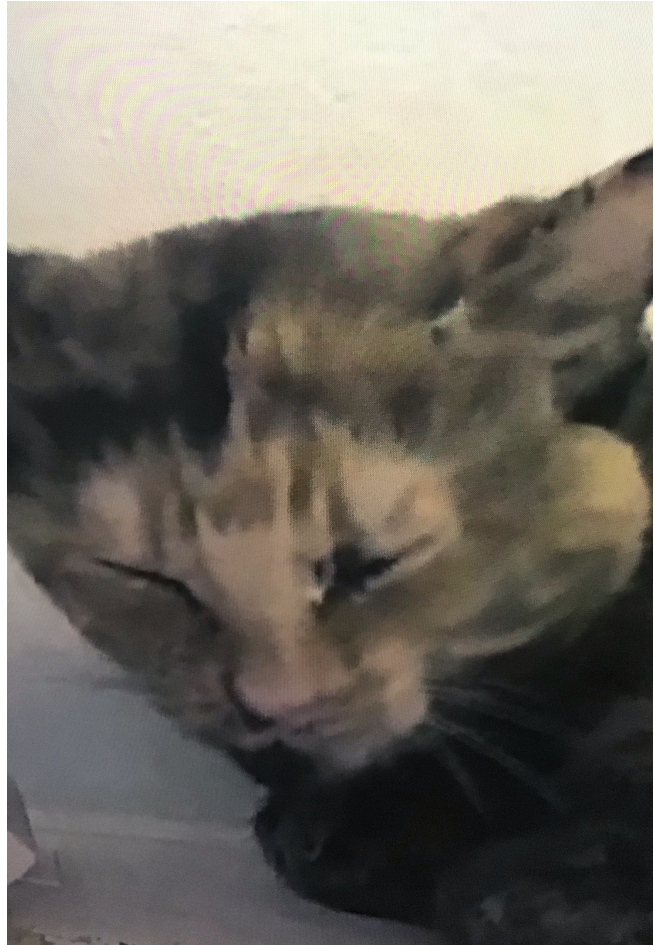

Image above - Judy, who thinks she could win a medal for most hours slept without waking.