

CATS ILLUSTRATED

There is a big video game contest being held!

Coming up in early September, there is a very big video game contest being held. A lot of cats are looking forward to it, especially kittens, who are going to participate together. The theme of the contest is warfare, so a company was chosen to code a huge video game - a bigger war game than even "The Call of Duty" itself. It can have anywhere from two to twenty teams, and there can be up to eight players on a team. More means that there are more fighters, but also more mouths to feed. The goal of the game is to win a two to twenty team war. Completing the whole game, even against the computer is hard - it took Rudy and her kittens a full three hours. Think about what it would be like with up to nineteen other teams competing. However, this has sparked a lot of competition between sisters and video gamers. Juliet, Blackpelt, and their six kittens will be trying out for the tournament, along with Judy and her seven kittens, Jake and his six kittens (Lunch wasn't allowed to participate under doctors orders - too much stress), Rudy and her six kittens, and Stripy and her three kittens teamed up with Harvey, North, and Makenna. That is already five teams, who along with forty - five other teams will try out for the main event of the tournament.

Image above - Rudy and her kittens, who are going to participate as a family.

The tryouts are being held tomorrow, and today and yesterday the participants have been getting ready. They were allowed to try a smaller version of the game, for practice. However, lots of cats staying home to play video games had a lot of problems. Lunch's Luncheon was understaffed, so she couldn't handle all of the takeout orders that came in. Lunch made sure to save some food for her kittens and Jake, and tried to get orders packed up and ready to be recieved as fast as she could. However, Juliet and her kittens had the main problem. They were participating as eight, so no one wanted to call in and pick up takeout. Blackpelt eventually went to the kitchen and got out a couple massive bags of chips.

Image above - Harvey and North, who are dreaming of beating the other teams into the dust.

“Harvey’s pretty formidable in a war Jeep - we better watch out.”

- JUDY AND HER KITTENS, PLANNING

When they hear about a tournament, a lot of cats think “prizes”, and I think that you are thinking the same thing. Well, even though getting an excuse to play video games for a very long time is fun, the prizes are even better. For third prize, there is a cash prize of 100 dollars, eight free meal coupons for The Wish for Fish, and a free brand new video game that has not even made its public debut. In fact, every participant in the final round gets a free new video game. For second prize, a cash prize of 500 dollars, a year long membership to Santa Cruz beach boardwalk, and three new video games. And, for first prize, a cash prize of 1,000 dollars, a big new video game console, five new video games, and one very special video game dedicated to the first prize team.

Subscribe again for the tryouts!