

---

CATS ILLUSTRATED

---

The video game contest tryouts have begun!

In a little bit, the video game contest tryouts are beginning. Many cats are teaming up and giving them a go, because the prizes are absolutely wonderful - wouldn't it be amazing if you had a video game dedicated to you and your team? Well, kittens seem to think so, and are teaming up for the tryouts.

Image above - Lunch's kittens, who are super excited for the tryouts.

---

The tryouts are being held at the local video Game Center (yes, there is a local video Game Center in this town), and the teams will go in five groups of ten teams - there are fifty teams total. The game will be cranked down to an easier level, and the goal is to finish in the top four of your group. Judy and her kittens are in group one, Rudy and her kittens in group two,

Jake and his kittens in group three, Juliet, Blackpelt, and their kittens in group four, and Stripy, her kittens, North, Makenna, and Harvey in group five. They all hope to finish in the top of their group, but who knows what will happen. Mavis and Naya chose not to participate, however, and had to bribe their kittens not to do anything very bad in retaliation.

Now, the first group is going to start playing soon, each team in a separate comfy room. The rooms have water, soda, all the snacks you can eat, a bathroom, and even a couple of beds - cats could get tired. There are a number of game controllers for each team, and a TV that fills nearly the whole wall on one wall for the game. In the game, each character can move how they want, so on the big TV, there will be a small camera on each player, and then a big camera on the most players in one area. For this first round, the players in the game only have one tank, ten rounds of ammunition, and some armor. Forging more stuff is up to the teams, but will be needed in the coming times.

Image above - Judy, who's letting her kittens do a power suckle before starting up their game.

Now, the teams are starting up their games and will be pushing start very soon. They are in one lobby, characters chosen already. The character choice is up to the players, but they all pick from the same different characters. Judy and her kittens are ready to start the round, and are getting ready to start up their game.

“In this game I can make all the weapons I can dream of - axes, swords, wands!”

- BLACKFUR, ONE OF JUDY'S KITTENS

Now, the announcement has been made and all ten teams in the first group started up their games. Judy and her kittens got a look at the base that they would try to hold, and what they had in supplies. They started their practiced routine of gathering food and supplies. Other teams made similar actions. However, this was not the fun part yet. Teams weren't ready to risk anything important yet, and would take at least half an hour to get set up usually. But the game was in motion, with more fighting and a lot of bloodshed to come.

Subscribe again for more tryouts!