

---

CATS ILLUSTRATED

---

The video game tournament is in full swing!

Now, after a few more hours, some interesting things have happened in the video game tournament. The “spirit” has not struck again, but 7 teams have been eliminated, including Rudy and Judy. They fought to the death with axes and then were defeated by a bomb from another team. The other 5 teams were either defeated by the “spirit”, or were sniped easily by another team. However, a team is starting to rise to the top. A group of adult cats, maybe even professional gamers, have thrived in this game. They have weapons, food, supplies, everything needed in the game, and are getting ready to launch a big attack. The only team that could have any chance at the moment is Jake’s team, as they have a huge shock absorbing shield on Image above - Rudy, who along with Judy fought each other to the death (they were both defeated by a bomb in the end).

---

their base, and a huge bomb factory inside. They have already blew up another team's fortress, making it look easy all the while.

Stripy's team has been building a huge thing - we can see that it is a massive orb, and it seems to conduct energy. If Stripy's team could harness that power, they could make some shock weapons that would stun the other teams (pun intended). They are a team to watch for sure, as this game moves on. However, some more has happened in the time since we started writing this. 2 more teams were either exploded or sniped, and one more team made a vital mistake - it was Juliet's team, and since she still didn't feel so good, she accidentally sorted a poisonous plant into the good to eat pile. Her team died pretty fast, leaving only 10 teams remaining. Juliet felt horrible, and not just in the game, or in her belly - she had lost the game for her team. Blackpelt and her kittens understood though, and gave Juliet a hug.

Now, the team that had seemed strong in the beginning started to go on the offensive - they easily defeated 2 teams and were going to attack Jake's team but retreated after a large barrage of bombs. Then, that team focused their energy on Stripy's team. However, a shockwave seemed to come from nowhere, stunning the characters in the game. A voice boomed from the fortress "go away, or next time, that shockwave will hurt." The shockwave had already hurt quite a bit, so that team ran away fast. There were 8 teams remaining though, so this still had a while to go.

"Lunch's chanting can be heard from the street - a cat may call the police."

- MAVIS, WHO WAS OUT FOR A JOG

Jake and his team went on the offensive just now, attacking 2 other teams near them. Their bombs could go long range, and it was easy to defeat the 2 teams. However, Stripy's team had somehow built their giant orb into a spider like contraption - that could walk and send out shockwaves. What would happen when this monster got to a camp!

Subscribe again for the finale!

Image above - Lunch, who's chanting "blow them up, blow them up," while watching Jake and his kittens make bombs.