
CATS ILLUSTRATED

Cats are trying new things!

As the video game contest is over, cats are trying new things. A lot of parent cats agree that their kittens need a break from video games, and have been urging their kittens to go outside. However, the kittens will usually just go to a friend's house, or the house of Lunch, which still allows video games.

On that topic, Lunch, Jake, and their kittens have tried out Cat Quest II. It is a fun game, and the 7 characters to chose from are named after Jake and his kittens, being the winning team. The video game will be released to the general public soon, along with the other new games that were won in the contest. Now that Jake, Lunch, and their kittens have 3 video game consoles (one for the kittens, one for Lunch and Jake, and then the one that was won in the video game contest), many kittens have been coming over to Lunch's house to play some video games. However, even Lunch knows that kittens shouldn't just play video games all day, and shooed many of them out. However, we don't think kittens respect Lunch's judgement too much, because Lunch was seen playing video games to 11 P.M. at night last night.

Image above - Rudy, who thinking of maybe possibly giving Judy her wallet back.

Well, as we said a bit earlier in this issue, cats have been striving to try new things. Naya, for example, has limited stealing money to only 565 dollars a week. This is still quite a bit of money, but you don't want to know how much Naya stole before. Judy has visited the new gym and tried out the rock climbing walls. She fell quite a bit, and Rudy, unchanging in her ways, filmed it all and posted it on catTube. Judy got furious, and did not go to the rock climbing wall again. However, Rudy was thinking about having a change of heart - she had spent all of the money in Judy's wallet, but was thinking about possibly giving the wallet back to Judy. She knew Judy loved that wallet, as it had been a gift from White before she left.

Juliet's bellyache has not gotten any better, and she has been in the hospital for the past day. The doctors agree that she should not have participated in the video game contest, because it was too stressful. However, the doctors may need to pump Juliet's stomach to get out the thing that caused her this bellyache. Blackpelt and her kittens are with her right now, because Juliet is not feeling very good at all.

“Casseroles don't even taste good.”

- JUDY, WHO'S GRUMBLING
BECAUSE HER CATTUBE CHANNEL HAS 10 SUBSCRIBERS

Mavis has tried something new, too, and is going to appear on Stripy's "cooking casserole" channel on catTube. The channel has 800k subscribers, as more cats than you would think don't know and want to know how to cook a casserole. Mavis has never appeared on a live cooking video though, and is very nervous.

Subscribe again for the casserole show!

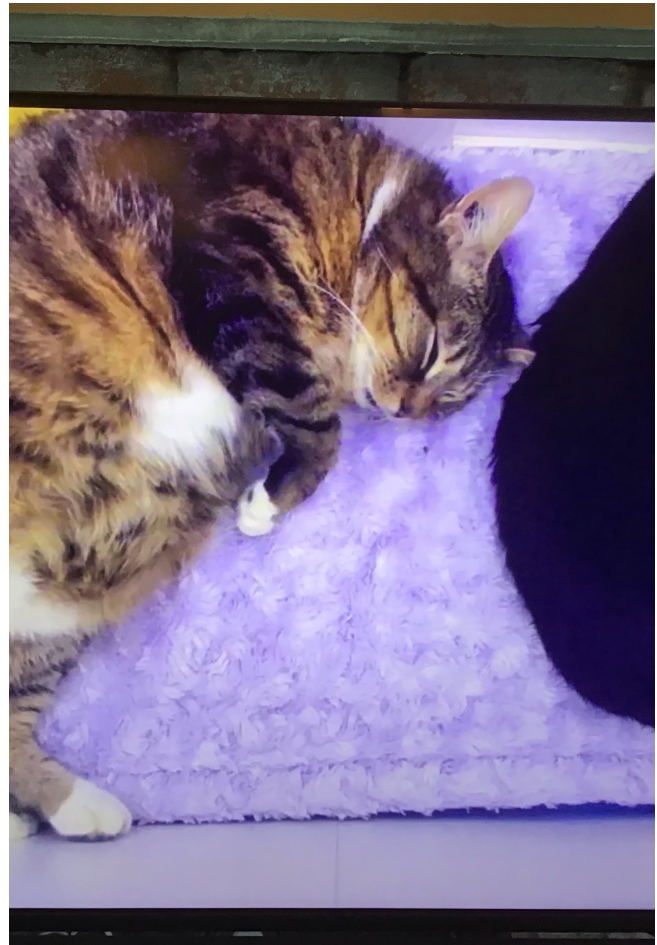

Image above - Harvey, who didn't eat any caffeine today on Makenna's orders but went to bed at 1 in the afternoon.