
CATS ILLUSTRATED

Stripy's casserole show is on live!

Though it is on every week, this week we are focusing on Stripy's casserole show. It is a very enjoyable show, and this week, Mavis will be on it. Mavis is very nervous, but is also very excited to appear on the show. She has never been on a live show before, especially one where thousands of cats will be watching her.

Image above - Judy, who thought she'd tune in to watch.

The casserole show is scheduled to start around lunchtime, to get cats hungry, and also to make Mavis and Stripy a lunch. That was always how Stripy's shows went - she ate a meal at the end. Mavis was excited, because today's casserole would have cabbage. It would be a very enjoyable meal at the end. However, we have never focused on anything even a bit similar to this before, so this is a new experience for us all.

Stripy has set up the camera for her show, and then other side cameras that will have edited clips of the video she gave Mavis an apron to put on, and got out the ingredients. Shell pasta, cheese, cabbage, peas, chicken, butter, oil, breadcrumbs, and carrots. If the cabbage was not there, this would be a classic casserole. However, cabbage added a very unique and distinct flavor, and Stripy would be experimenting.

The show went live just now, and Stripy is doing the introductions, and saying what she will be making today. Some cats just tune in to watch, but others have the ingredients out - Stripy will post a list beforehand. We have checked the viewers, and right now, 300,000 cats are watching live. That amount of views tends to climb as the casserole making proceeds, and has sometimes hit as much as 700,000 live viewers. But right now, Stripy and Mavis are just chopping cabbage and carrots and chatting. Mavis seems to have relaxed, and is sharing some of her cabbage making secrets with Stripy.

Image above - Harvey, who's going to try to follow along, but substitute all salt with twice as much sugar.

“That paper could burn Stripy’s house down if she isn’t careful!”

- JULIET, WHO IS WORRIED FOR STRIPY

The cooking show has progressed a little now, as all of the prep is done and Mavis and Stripy are cooking the noodles and sautéing the cabbage. The carrots and peas will come in soon, and the chicken after that. Unlike some recipes, the chicken cooks with the vegetables, so that this all melts together into guess what? A casserole.

The next step was to put in the chicken, but that wasn’t the next thing that happened. Stripy owned a gas stove, so there was a flame heating up the pan and pot. Unfortunately, she had put the ingredient list a bit too close to the burner, and it sparked, smoked, and then caught fire.

Subscribe again for a kitchen fire!