

---

CATS ILLUSTRATED

---

Harvey has discovered soda!

Last night, Harvey went to get some sugar fries from Lunch's Luncheon and decided to see what "soda" tasted like. Harvey bought a large soda with his sugar fries, and sat down in his favorite booth for a taste. Harvey ate a sugar fry, and then took a sip of soda. Cats sitting in booths near Harvey have sworn that they could see his eyes grow bigger in surprise when he took that first sip. Harvey finished off the soda, and ordered another one.

Image above - Harvey, who tasted soda and will never forget it.

---

Harvey was halfway into his third soda when Makenna came by to check on Harvey at Lunch's Luncheon. Her eyes lit up in surprise and concern when she saw Harvey, sitting at the counter drinking a large soda.

Makenna pulled the soda out of Harvey's paws, and, not sure what to do in the moment, gulped it down. Harvey looked hurt as Makenna dragged him out of Lunch's Luncheon. When Harvey got back to their house, though, he started describing the wonders of soda to North, and Makenna knew it was a bit too late to save Harvey from the clutches of soda.

Things got a bit problematic, however, as Harvey started "seeing" vending machines for the first time. You couldn't let Harvey out on a walk alone because he would just go to the mall and buy a soda. North was deprived of the luxury of late night sodas on work nights when Harvey found North's secret stash and Makenna forced North to get rid of it. But Harvey wasn't done yet, as he remembered a whole lot of canned drinks in Naya's fridge. Harvey snuck out to Naya's house at night, and told her that he was trying to be bad and drink soda. This must have worked, because Naya let Harvey help himself to her stocked fridge. However, Harvey fell asleep after his fourth can of soda, because after all, it was two in the morning. Naya dragged Harvey's sleeping form outside and clustered some soda cans around it, so at least no cat would suspect her.

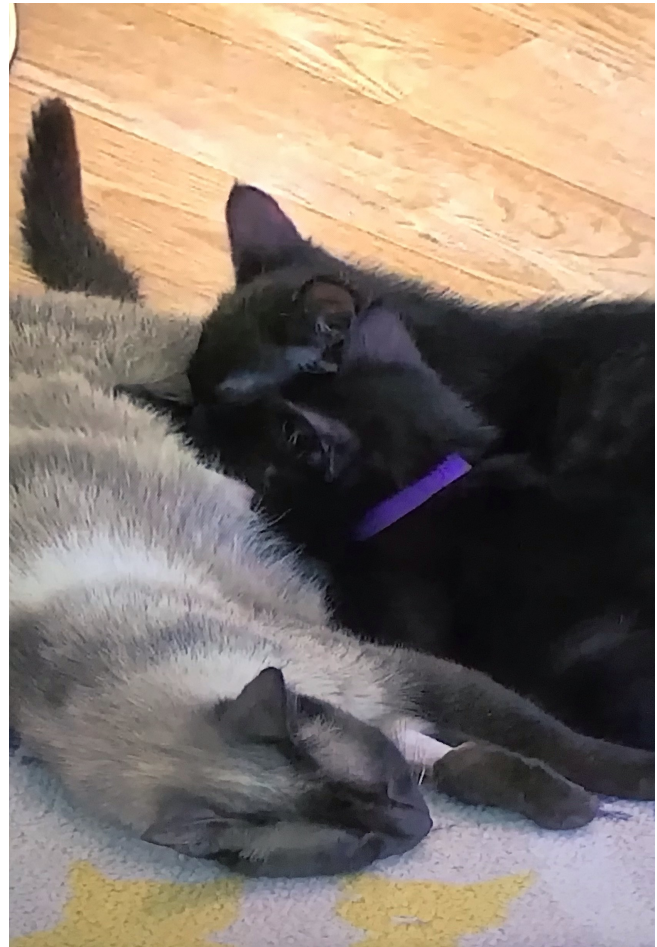

Image above - Lunch, who's happy to supply Harvey with soda if he pays for it.

"It doesn't matter if he pays! Don't give him soda!"

- MAKENNA, WHO ISN'T HAPPY WITH LUNCH RIGHT NOW

Today, however, Makenna forced Harvey to make a choice. When Harvey got back in the morning, fur bristling with twigs and soda stains around his mouth, Makenna told Harvey that she had all of his sugar cube hanging by a thread above a lake, and that North was there and holding some scissors. If Harvey didn't stop drinking soda, Makenna would tell North to cut the line. Harvey promised to stop drinking soda, but this had been a bluff, and it was revealed when North walked through the living room. Harvey slipped away to check on his sugar cubes, and Makenna sighed at North, who was looking confused.

Subscribe again for more on Harvey and soda!