
CATS ILLUSTRATED

The night festivities of the county fair are starting!

I know we said yesterday that it was the last day of the county fair, and we're sorry we made you think that it would be just like all of the other days, where it closed at 9 P.M.. However, this is the last night of the county fair, and it runs up until 2 in the morning. Lunch's Luncheon is operating on a skeleton crew, so employees can spend time with their families. Lunch's Luncheon will be closing early at 8 P.M., and then coming back at 10 to serve beer, popcorn, and other festive foods for an hour. After that, they will be closed for good.

Image above - Harvey, who knows it will be easier to blend in at night when he goes to get soda.

This last day of the county fair was only Wilbur Spots's second day, so to make it up to him, Juliet told her kittens that they could stay up until 11

P.M. at the county fair. However, Juliet's kittens knew that it would take some time for Juliet or Blackpelt to actually find them when it was time to go, so it would be more like 11:30 by the time they got going. Lunch's kittens have to stay until 11, because Lunch will be at Lunch's Luncheon, and will join Juliet's kittens in many shenanigans. Obsidian lifted several twenties out of Lunch's Luncheon's cash register, and traded them in for smaller bills and gave some to each of their siblings to spend. Lunch wouldn't notice - the cash register was already full to bursting.

Rudy has let her kittens go off on their own, and will be competing against Judy in a karaoke competition at 10 P.M.. She gave each of her kittens 10 dollars, and then 15 when they said that they would embarrass Rudy in front of the karaoke crowd if she didn't give them more. Then, Rudy's kittens rushed off, thinking about what to buy next. However, Mavis's kittens were not so lucky, as Mavis decided that she would buy anything for her kittens, they just had to stay under supervision. Mavis's kittens were not happy with this, and ran off to meet friends. Mavis chased after them, and gave each kitten a talking to before deciding that it might be better if they just had time on their own. Besides, Mavis had wanted to go on the drop tower ride for the whole county fair time, but had never had a chance.

Image above - Judy, who is convinced that she will best Rudy in the karaoke competition.

“I think it would be easy to hide out in the karaoke crowd with a soda.”

- HARVEY, SPECULATING

Now, as it is 10 P.M. here, we are filming the karaoke competition that is happening. There are four contestants, including Rudy and Judy, both in very glamorous outfits. They keep shooting dirty looks at each other, and this is roiling up the crowd, who seem to love grudges. The announcer is announcing the names of the contestants, and Judy is up first. She is singing the song “Lost”, by an anonymous artist. However, Rudy is giving Judy looks that say “you can’t do this” and “your voice will crack like desert ground,” and other unhelpful things.

Subscribe again for more on the karaoke competition!