

CATS ILLUSTRATED

There was an incident at Lunch's Luncheon!

Just now at Lunch's Luncheon's fair stand at the county fair, an incident went down. A sketchy cat sitting at a table in the corner made a grab for the cash register. The cashier reacted fast and squirted mustard at the cat's face, blinding them temporarily. Harvey, who was in Lunch's Luncheon with a soda and some sugar fries, tackled the cat and pinned them to the ground. Other cats in the Luncheon were shocked, and Lunch called the county fair police. The county fair police escorted the cat out of Lunch's Luncheon, and everything continued as normal, with one of the employees wiping up the mustard on the floor of the Luncheon.

Image above - Rudy, who's happy she and her kittens weren't there when The Incident went down.

However, this incident has left a lasting effect on Lunch, who is pretty shaken up. She doesn't understand why a cat would do that, try to steal the cash register. Lunch remembered greeting the cat with a smile, and feels very scared that what if another cat tries to steal the cash register. However, after cats saw what Harvey did, and that he is a regular around Lunch's Luncheon for soda and sugar fries, they might think twice or even three times about trying to steal the cash register. Still, Lunch is thinking about hiring a security guard. That wouldn't be too hard, and it would be easy to pay them, as Lunch could give the guard free meals and then some pay.

Meanwhile, Rudy and Judy are waiting for the results of the karaoke contest. They both sang their songs, and booed the other. The crowd is tittering about what would happen if either Rudy or Judy were declared the winner and then the other attacked the winner - We have noticed some county fair police hanging around by the exit of the karaoke competition building.

However, while Lunch ponders over what to do and Rudy and Judy await the results of the karaoke contest, kittens have discovered something amazing in the arcade. One of the vending machines was broken, and was dispensing free snacks. Kittens swarmed over the machine, desperate to get a free bag of chips. Rudy and Lunch's kittens were the first there, and got first picks. They then spent a lot of money in the arcade, and then to top it off, used the rest of their money to buy ice cream.

"The karaoke judges wisely scored Rudy and Judy as tied."

- JULIET, WHO KNOWS WHAT WOULD HAVE HAPPENED IF ONE OF THEM WON

that, knowing that it would be good to keep him completely away from soda for a while.

Subscribe again for more fun news!

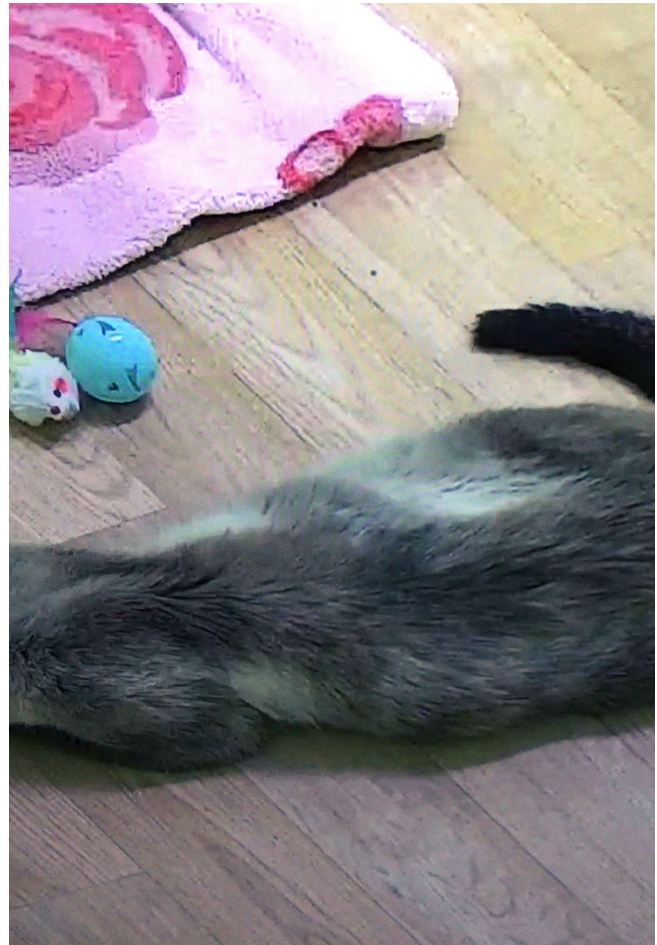

Image above - Lunch, who hopes her kittens don't go too crazy at the fair from sugar.