
CATS ILLUSTRATED

Rudy is publishing a book!

Now, after five months of work, Rudy is publishing a book about Pawsville, her hometown. Many cats are happy for Rudy, and surprised, because Rudy has never said anything about this until now. Judy has been all over this ever since Rudy announced that she was publishing a book, and Judy has made some comments about how no one will buy the book and that it probably is a bad book with lots of errors. However, when Rudy let Judy read the publishing ready version of the book, and it took Judy a full ten seconds to find a way to criticize it.

Image above - Harvey, who's happy Rudy is doing something other than fighting with Judy.

When Lunch read the book, she was very happy, as it had some ads for Lunch's Luncheon built in. Lunch gave Rudy a coupon for a free meal, and Rudy showed the coupon to Judy, while sticking her tongue out. Judy grabbed for the coupon, but Rudy pulled it out of reach. Judy fell, off balance, to the ground with a grunt. Rudy giggled and ran off.

We have also been very curious about the contents of the book, and have paid for an early copy. The book contains information about Pawsville, different shops and businesses, and then, oh my, a whole two pages about us! Well, I take back my happy tone, as one page is a photo of one of our reporters filming Rudy and Judy (no idea who took the photo), and then on the other page, there was a warning that told cats to beware of us, as we are being called very nosy, and we have been known to dig up information about cats that is better left buried...? Also, there is a short article written by Lemon that states that we have harassed him in prison... - okay, we came in for a couple of interviews, but who could call that harassment! Also, what cat is going to believe Lemon over a decorated and trusted (after this book is published, who knows) source of news!

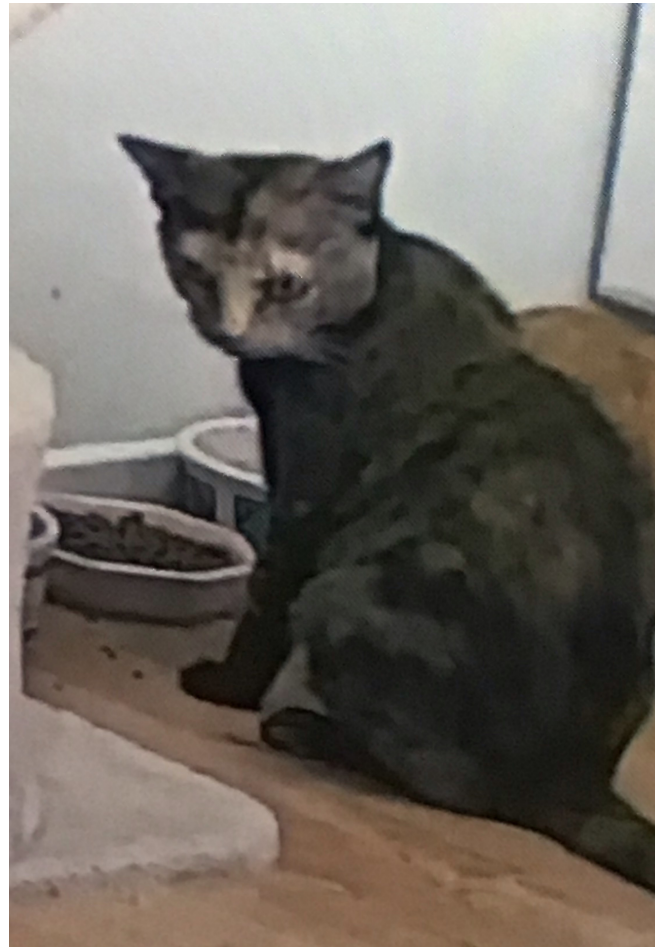

Image above - Judy, who has taken our side in trying to get the book unpublished, but for a different reason (spite).

We have sent a complaint to Rudy about her depiction of us, but it was too late. The book had been formally published, and released to the world. Already, some cats have sent complaints to us for no reason, and Lemon was given some better food in prison to make up for our “harassing” interviews. All right, we tried hard to get Lemon to talk about his view on things happening right now in the world, and one time we might have possibly stayed for three hours. But that isn’t harassment, that’s -... well, I can’t think of any other word for it, but it isn’t harassment! We are not very happy with this new book, and have already sued Rudy for mentioning us badly. Judy sweetened the deal by donating more money this month, as she seems to be trying to get on our good side.

“That last line, the “Subscribe again” one, wasn’t kitten friendly.”

- LUNCH

Subscribe again for more on the Godda book!