
CATS ILLUSTRATED

Kittens have discovered Legos!

A few days ago, when they passed by a Lego store, Juliet's kittens got curious, and went inside to take a closer look. They were instantly hooked, and pooled all of their pocket money for one spaceship lego set. They took the last 2 days to put it together, but now, they have gotten a feel for Legos, and want to get more. The Lego spaceship attracted kittens from all around, and then Juliet's kittens charged each kitten a dollar to play with it. Many kittens played with it, and soon, Juliet's kittens had enough to buy another set, but this time, they bought a large semi - truck set. They are still putting that one together.

Image above - Juliet, who doesn't know what to think of Legos.

While Juliet is happy that her kittens are doing something other than video games, Juliet is still in the dark about Legos. How do they fit together? Are they easy to break? For now she approved of her kittens playing with Legos, but wants to read more on them. Lunch's kittens, meanwhile, convinced Jake to get them a Lego set as well. Jake eventually caved and got them a police car Lego set, which has been occupying Lunch's kittens' time for the past 2 hours.

Naya is the only cat who already has Legos, as she must have stolen a set some time back. It is unopened, and Naya sold it to Mavis's kittens yesterday for around double its regular price. Mavis got mad, and demanded that Naya give her back some of the money she had charged. Naya eventually gave up some of the money, and Mavis stormed off.

Meanwhile, Rudy and Judy are pondering whether Legos could be used as weapons. Rudy thinks that if she glued together legos to shape an axe it would be a pretty good weapon, and Judy thinks that if she had a lot of tiny shooters it could hold off an attacker. We are not sure either of these would make good weapons, but then again, who knows.

Rudy has bought her kittens a large Lego set, and she is working with them to put it together. Blackspots is working on his own lego set, but his is more complicated and is more of a technical build. Judy is also buying a lego set, but for herself. She is upset because her kittens wanted to help Rudy's kittens build instead of her. But then again, Judy bought that set for herself.

“Legos are so fun! However, mama steals pieces from our sets.”

- NAYA'S KITTENS

Harvey is the only cat who is not so excited about Legos. He knows that Legos are not from his generation, and isn't ready to accept that his time has passed. For now, Harvey is content to stay home counting and eating sugar cubes.

Subscribe again for more on Legos!

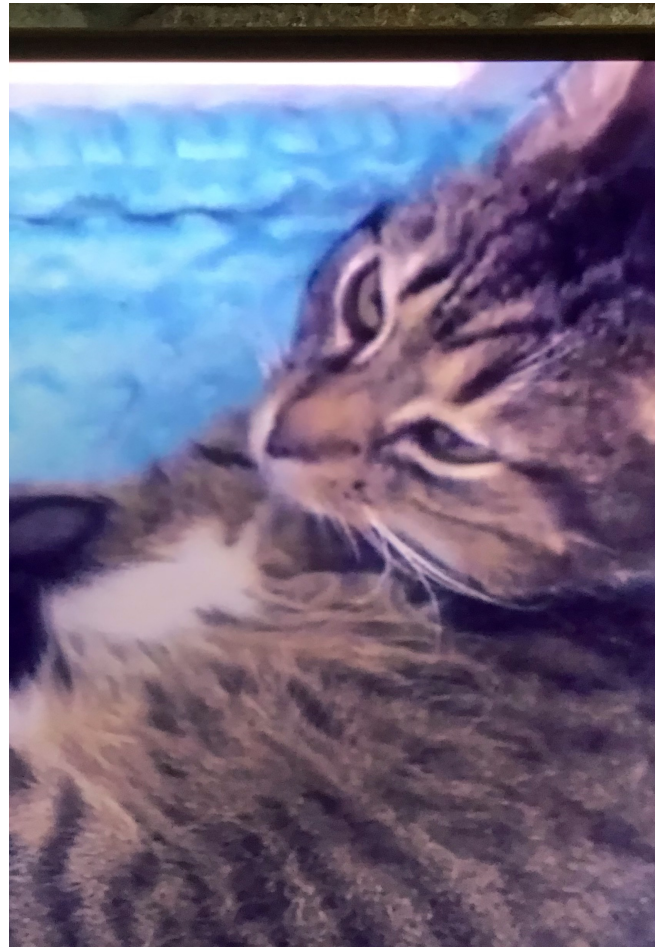

Image above - Harvey, who knows Legos are not from his generation.