

---

CATS ILLUSTRATED

---

North and Harvey are back from their trip!

As they have stayed for a week in Egypt, Harvey and North have arrived back in Pawsville. Cats are super excited, but no cat will be able to stop Harvey from going to The Food Mood for his first meal, even if there is an hour long waiting time just for a table.

Image above - Lunch, who's glad to see Harvey and North back home.

---

North and Harvey did manage to save some leftovers from Egypt in North's carry on bag, and yesterday kittens got to taste food made in Egypt. North went to bed after that, because he hadn't been able to get much sleep on the plane unlike Harvey, who slept for about ten hours total on the two plane rides. North had a lot on his mind, and will also be going back to Behavior and Co. tomorrow after a long rest to report on how the trip went. North also seems to have brought us a short typed up story about his time in Egypt, and we are working on fixing it up.

Harvey and North may not have come back at the best time, because right now lots of cats are fighting just because. No cat knows why, it's just that a lot of cats are in really bad moods right now. Rudy and Judy are at each other's throats, and even kittens have been picking fights with each other. In fact, Lunch and her kittens banded together just to ambush Naya and her kittens on the way back from school. Lunch is already in a bad mood, because her Luncheon is getting barely any business after The Food Mood opened. However, now that Harvey is back, things may be okay.

Most cats are so busy fighting that they have forgotten about the acrobatics competition coming up. In fact, Mavis doesn't even remember her kittens throwing fits when Mavis said she didn't want to participate. That is very surprising, because those fits shook the walls of Mavis's house. However, I guess that is in the past now and new things are arising. Now that Harvey is back, we are sure that there will be another soda epidemic or two before Harvey calms down.

“Harvey just came in and ordered some sugar fries and a soda - didn't he just stuff himself?”

- LUNCH, WHO'S WONDERING HOW LARGE A STOMACH CAN BE

Harvey has finally been able to get into The Food mood, and has already been stuffing himself a few times over. Makenna is in there, and she is actually trying to stop Harvey from making a fifth trip to the platters of food. However, Makenna doesn't have to stop Harvey anymore, as he is rushing off to the bathroom as all that food he is taking in is probably going to push some waste out the other end. The Food Mood has good bathrooms, because they know cats will need an emergency trip there if they eat too much, and they want to make staying there as appealing as possible.

Subscribe again for new stuff!

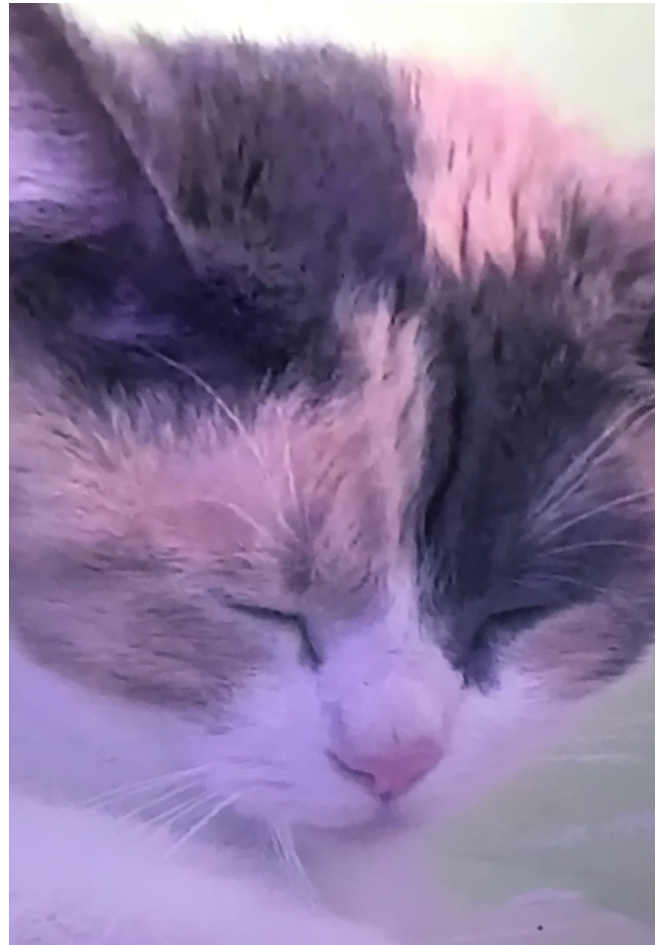

Image above - Juliet, who's glad Harvey isn't crazy for ice cream as there isn't too much in the stores.