
CATS ILLUSTRATED

Stripy is being celebrated!

As today it is Stripy's turn to be celebrated, cats prepared for more festivities. However, after setting up and cleaning up two large parties in the last two days, cats are a bit exhausted. However, Stripy is taking all of this in stride, and has been helping out how she can. She plans to have a casserole tasting contest, and has already baked ten completely different casseroles for her party. Lunch's Luncheon will be catering the party, but luckily not too much, as the casseroles will serve as a main dish.

Image above - Harvey, who gave up baking and bought a cake from the store for Stripy.

As you may have heard in a past issue, Stripy has actually started selling her casseroles, and they are very popular. In fact, Stripy has hired a driver to ship casseroles to their destination in a large and very well maintained truck. However, Stripy still made these casseroles, even though she has been swamped with orders from all over since she started her business.

Stripy's three kittens have gotten her a hand fan, to cool Stripy down when she is working with hot casseroles and the oven, along with some incense to calm down peacemaking clients and also give her house a nice smell. Stripy is very happy with her gifts, and was very happy when Naya delivered her gift - it was a homemade casserole that Naya made, and along with it, a birthday card with a single dollar in it! A dollar! Naya wouldn't give Mavis a dollar if Mavis had Naya in a headlock on the edge of a cliff! Oh my that was very meaningful - or at least for Naya.

In the end, Stripy did realize that her cake was store bought, but she didn't care much, as she knew that Harvey would eventually need a break from baking. Harvey will be baking a cake for Rudy and Judys' parties though, and he is resting up to be ready for that grand task. Both Rudy and Judy will insist on having a larger cake than the other, and in the end, Harvey just has to make two humongous cakes that are the same size - it is not a fun process at all.

Image above - Lunch, who'll make a cake anywhere, anytime, for a straight up payment of 150 dollars.

“My party will be at my house, and there will be cocktails, and pool games.”

- RUDY, WHO'S FEELING CONFIDENT

Stripy's party will be smaller than Mavis and Naya's parties, and she is okay with cats taking a break right now. Stripy knows that Rudy and Judy's parties will be a different matter, as they will try and outshine the other. Rudy is already preparing, which is a bit rude to Stripy, as it is still Stripy's special day. However, Stripy doesn't mind too much, and is having a lot of fun with her kittens and Naya. In fact, since there aren't a lot of cats at the casserole tasting station, we have signed up for it. I mean, it's free food. And we're broke. Also, it's wonderfully tasty! Win - win.

Subscribe again for more on Stripy's celebrations!