

---

CATS ILLUSTRATED

---

Rudy's birthday celebrations have been delayed!

As of a few assorted issues, Rudy's birthday celebrations have been delayed to tomorrow. Rudy is protesting, and Judy is not happy either, but cats need a break as they have been working hard setting up and cleaning up parties. However, that raised another problem. What about Halloween? No cat can have a party on Halloween! Unless it is a Halloween party, not a birthday party. And this gave cats a thought, a thought that might be dangerous, but it might just work. What if Rudy and Judy had a joint party the day before Halloween?

Image above - Harvey, who is exhausted from making and delivering cakes.

---

“Nope, no, definitely not happening,” Rudy is telling us, “Judy will ruin the party for cats and I can’t have that. Nope, we won’t do a joint party, even if my kittens force me to drink pineapple punch, it won’t happen.” We are not sure what is so bad about pineapple punch, but Rudy has something in for it. However, Judy has the same reaction. “If Rudy and I have a joint party, I’m going to start saving up urine to pee in Rudy’s pool. I am NOT going to have Rudy ruin my party, and if we have to have a joint party, I will make it miserable.” Right now, both Rudy and Judy slightly resemble kittens.

However, neither Rudy nor Judy want their party to be delayed to after Halloween, and it looks like a joint party is in the future. However, Rudy and Judy are fighting over what the party will be like. “I want it to be a pool party, with good music, cool drinks, and a cake,” Rudy is saying, but Judy disagrees, “no, I’ll pee in your pool if it is a pool party, I want a party in the woods, where cats can build forts and have water guns to shoot each other with! That would be really fun!” Rudy growled and tackled Judy, snarling about how no one would pee in her pool if it was her dying wish.

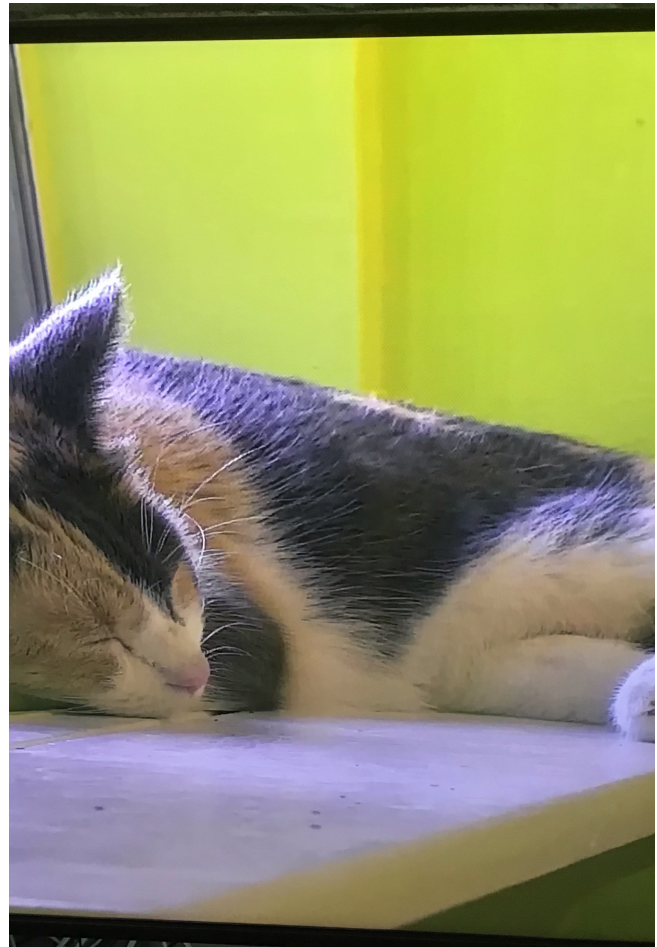

Image above - Juliet, who is thinking about how to combine those two party ideas.

“I already thought up that compromise - you plagiarized me!”

- JULIET, TALKING TO LUNCH

In the end, Lunch was the one who proposed the compromise. They would go to The Squirt Gun Arena for the party, where you can book a large auditorium with small pools scattered around it and some fake boxes for a squirt gun fight. Both Rudy and Judy seemed okay with that idea, and kittens were pumped. The Squirt Gun Arena is only a dream for most kittens, and we hear that kittens are already packing. However, both Rudy and Judy weren’t completely sure yet. “What about the snacks?” Rudy asked. “And what about the food?” Judy questioned. “I’ll supply both,” Lunch told them, even though she planned on making another cat buy the snacks.

Subscribe again for more on The Squirt Gun Arena!