
CATS ILLUSTRATED

Lunch has decided to go vegetarian!

For a variety of different reasons, Lunch has decided to go vegetarian. She loves meat, but she thinks that it is best if she stops eating it for health reasons. However, Lunch has also been hearing of the product “Other Meat,” which has foods that look like meat, that taste like meat, but aren’t meat. Lunch is interested, as that means that she can still enjoy the taste of meat, just in a vegetarian form.

Image above - Lunch, eating her last can of tuna.

However, Lunch’s diet change has also changed her Luncheon. Today, all regular meat burgers used Other Meat, a beef substitute that has good reviews. Lunch gave her customers a survey to see if the burger tasted any different, and only nine percent of the customers said that the meat tasted strange. That was good enough for Lunch, and she put up Other Meat burgers on the menu instead of regular burgers.

Another change was in the classic Christmas style meals. The chicken drumsticks were replaced with Other Meat drumsticks, and that definitely tipped cats off. In the end, Lunch decided to keep the regular drumsticks on the menu. But her next decision has been called very good by a certain cat. When Lunch was revising her menu, she realized that her fries had meat flavoring added to them. And this is where Lunch gets sneaky. She asked the Other Meat company if they had any Other Meat flavoring, and the company did, so Lunch bought it up in bulk. Today was the first time to try it out in her fries.

A few cats ordered fries around Lunchtime, when you could get a special deal because it was Lunch's special part of the day. However, no cat was noticing the other kind of meat flavoring, but the real test happened when Harvey came in and ordered a large sugar fries. Lunch was watching nervously as Harvey bit into a sugar fry. Suddenly, Harvey shot out of his chair and ran over to Lunch. "Best sugar fries ever!" Harvey told her.

Image above - Harvey, telling North about his wonderful order of sugar fries.

"If vegetarian Lunch had come over to dinner, I would have snuck meat into her food."

- NAYA

Lunch wants to go vegetarian, and she has tried, but just now Lunch has told cats that she is not going to go vegetarian because meat is a good thing to have in your diet. Lunch changed all of the meat substitutions back to regular meat, except for the sugar fries. Harvey tips very well for those. Right now, Lunch is going out to The Wish for Fish for a fish sandwich, because Lunch, even trying her hardest, could never ever stop eating fish sandwiches from The Wish for Fish. Many cats can understand this, and Harvey feels the same way about sugar fries.

Subscribe again for more on the meats!