

---

CATS ILLUSTRATED

---

Cats are angry at Harvey!

As cats are angry over not being chosen to go on Harvey's camping trip, many cats have decided that they need to show Harvey what not bringing them camping will do. However, Rudy has grouped together her and Stripy's kittens, telling them that they need to protect Harvey and make sure Harvey's house doesn't get beaten up too much. Stripy and Blackspots are busy packing for camping, while Rudy is setting up a barricade to protect Harvey's house.

Image above - Juliet, who threw three eggs at Harvey's house yesterday.

---

Cats have taken Rudy's protectiveness of Harvey as an open insult. Rudy had been chosen to go camping, so of course she would want to protect Harvey. However, this has just made many cats even angrier, and new cartons of eggs were brought out. But Rudy and her kittens, along with Stripy's kittens were ready. They secured the perimeter of the house, kittens guarding the walls at even intervals. Rudy was ready to assist any kittens in need, and she was wearing protective padding.

Harvey has been holed up in his house, too distressed to pack. He had hoped that there might have been a few complaints about his decision, but then they would have gone away fast. But this was open riot. If Rudy, her kittens, and Stripy's kittens hadn't been there, Harvey's house would have gotten egged, toilet papered, and covered in graffiti even more than it already had. However, Harvey did not stay sad for long. He was angry that cats openly challenged his decision. Harvey ran into the living room, full of anger, and ate a dozen sugar cubes before going back to his room to pack.

Back outside Harvey's house, Rudy and her kittens were overwhelmed. However, Naya, even though she was angry about not being chosen, offered to help secure the area. She would bring her kittens, so Rudy would have seven more security guards to command. But Naya wouldn't do this for free. Rudy was getting desperate, so when Naya said that she wanted Rudy's new high-tech bicycle, Rudy started to nod before catching herself, and shaking her head.

“I've been waiting for the moment to tackle Naya for something!”

- LUNCH

Naya shrugged and walked away, surprised to find the battlefield quiet, cats looking at her open-mouthed. But then Naya realized that she had been seen conversing with the enemy. It took just a few seconds for every single cat in the area to leap for Naya.

Naya's kittens chose that moment to make their getaway, because Naya deserved that attack more than they would have. But Naya would be angry when she got home to find happy, unhurt kittens.

Subscribe again for more on this riot!

Image above - Lunch and her kittens, who hate traitors.