Other cats are going camping!

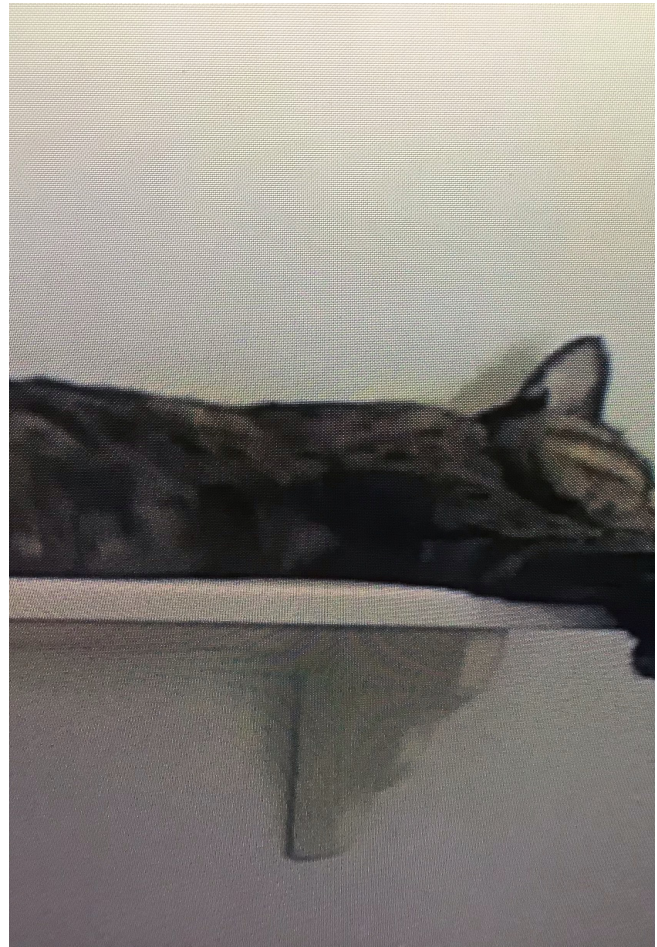

Because only a few cats got to come on Harvey's special camping trip, other cats have been thinking of having camping trips of their own. This weekend is a three-day weekend, so there would be enough time to stay two nights at a camping site. However, all of the camping sites near Harvey were booked way ahead of time, as those camping sites have wonderful views of Lake Scruff.

The only camping sites available for this weekend are about a mile away from Harvey's camping site, so there wouldn't be much interaction between the two groups of cats. But there is short time to pack, so even kittens have to up their act if they want to go camping. Juliet and Blackpelt have booked a nice camping spot near a hiking trail, so they can do some nice hiking on their camping trip. Lunch, Jake, and their kittens have a small cabin near the lake, which they will be using. Lunch, Jake, and their kittens are in within walking distance of Harvey, which will be nice.

There are many cool activities at this camping complex. At the lake, there is paddle boarding and kayaking available, and there is a rope swing overlooking the lake. However, you can only use these things if you have a campsite near the lake, which is why all of the campsites sell out so fast on weekends. Harvey booked his site way ahead, as it large, and it has a wonderful view of Lake Scruff. Harvey plans on doing some paddle boarding, and he also wants to try out the rope swing. Rudy, Blackspots, Stripy, and their nine kittens combined are also looking forward to this trip, and Makenna and North are very happy about it too.

Judy has decided that she does not want to go camping, and she has managed to fend off any protests from her kittens. Judy has plans for Rudy's house, and they aren't pretty. However, Rudy is not totally oblivious to this fact, and she has left some defenses behind that should be enough to keep Judy away. It meant breeding tarantulas, but it was worth it to protect her house.

Many cats have good camping trips to look forward to, good camping trips that will be full of good memories. Harvey has asked Lunch if she could bring some frozen sugar fries, and then heat them up so he could have sugar fries during camping. Lunch turned away this proposal, because she didn't want to lug around a few pounds of frozen sugar fries.

Harvey is disappointed, but there are other things besides sugar fries to look forward to during camping.
