
CATS ILLUSTRATED

Cats are celebrating Harvey's NPCEC win!

As Harvey is the champion of the NPCEC, cats are celebrating him like mad. Harvey's prizes will be delivered soon, along with some free potato chips that Harvey got in order to test out the "free potato chips for life" system. He is very happy, and is enjoying all of the celebrations.

Harvey has done some celebratory skiing and sledding, but kittens don't let him use their jump anymore because his weight flattens it. However, Harvey has also tried ice skating, and he is enjoying that very much, even though he falls a lot. But right now, cats are waiting for Harvey's grand prize to come, his new car proclaiming him champion of the NPCEC.

Image above - Harvey, whose drank more celebratory beers and ate eaten more celebratory sugar cubes than he can count.

It isn't a Jeep, and it isn't open air, but it is a sports car, and it looks pretty sharp. Harvey is also waiting for his check for ten grand, as that was also a prize for first place.

Cats have used Harvey's win as an excuse to do some celebrating, which includes drinking lots of beer and soda, eating salty snacks, and staying up late. Kittens have gotten in on the action, and some kittens have been trying to stay up all night by drinking lots of soda. So far, the record is 3:09 A.M., but the kitten who managed that had access to some coffee beforehand, and has been disqualified from the competition. However, adult cats don't care too much about whether their kittens stay up a lot, because Harvey is the NPCEC champion, and he has free potato chips for life, and he'll get some for you if you're nice to him.

Harvey is happy that he got first place, but the third place prize got him interested in something else. The third place cat won two tickets to a cruise in the Pacific Ocean, which is something that Harvey would like to try. He has seen ads for cruises on TV, and the cruise boats can sometimes have waterslides, cool pools, and even Go Kart tracks. Harvey has expressed that he would like to try going on a cruise sometime, as it would be a very fun experience.

Image above - Juliet, who would like to go on a cruise sometime too.

“You can have free sugar fries in exchange for sour cream and onion chips!”

- LUNCH, WHO WANTS SOUR CREAM AND ONION CHIPS

Harvey is still in for many more celebrations, and he is also going to get extra-special treatment from cats who want a certain rare flavor of potato chips, but they don't want to pay for it. Harvey does have free potato chips for life, and he hopes to use it wisely. However, Harvey has a weakness, and that is pleading from kittens. Lunch's kittens wanted some sour cream and onion chips, but didn't feel like paying for them, and they went to Harvey and started pleading. We'll just tell you this: Lunch's kittens got their sour cream and onion chips.

Subscribe again for more on cruises!