
CATS ILLUSTRATED

Lunch's kittens have been found!

Late last night, the search team found Lunch's kittens deep in the woods. They were very cold, hungry, and tired. Lunch is extremely relieved, and she has made her kittens promise that they will never do anything like what they did again. Lunch's kittens have promised that they won't.

Image above - Harvey, who's so relieved that Lunch's kittens have been located.

While cats were searching for Lunch's kittens, Rudy and Judy took big steps toward becoming friendly. Judy apologized for breaking a window of Rudy's house, and Rudy told Judy she was sorry for breaking Judy's bones with her club. Both Rudy and Judy have actually sworn that they wouldn't fight for another month, and even if they did, their kittens would not be roped into it. Doctors and nurses in Pawsville have agreed to let Rudy and Judy stay and take group therapy with Harvey as a test, but if they start fighting again, both Rudy and Judy will be sent off to professional therapists.

However, Rudy and Judy are already acting very differently. Rudy helped Judy find an item in the grocery store today, and Judy got a bramble out of Rudy's fur. When Rudy's kittens came to Judy's house with their VR game goggles, Judy let them use the goggles in her basement, and even let her own kittens try them out too. But both Rudy and Judy were still wary of each other. Last night, Rudy hurried off when dinner at Judy's house started. And Judy looks for cartons of eggs before letting Rudy into her house. But all in all, they are becoming more friendly toward each other, which is an important step.

Meanwhile, Lunch's kittens have revealed that they just wanted to see what the outdoors were like, because their only camping experience had been very cold, marshmallow-less, and altogether miserable. However, Lunch has agreed that she would take her kittens camping again, because even she wants to make up for the horrible experience. Jake promised that he wouldn't forget the sleeping bags and marshmallows again.

That pretty much sealed the deal.

Image above - Juliet, who's never gone camping before.

"I hope this new beginning includes money!"

- NAYA

Right now, there is a lot of aftermath going on. Lunch's kittens have been found, and now they are just recovering from their wilderness experience. Rudy and Judy are starting to accept each other, after their big fight. The winter storm that hit Pawsville is over, and the grocery store has food in stock. It almost feels like something new is beginning.

No cat could know what, but Mavis might say that a new age of power is coming to the land, because Venus was eclipsing Mercury or something.

Subscribe again for a new beginning!