

---

CATS ILLUSTRATED

---

Kittens are being removed from Harvey's property!

As Pawsville's board of construction has gotten a warrant from a judge, they are ready to remove kittens from Harvey's property by force. But kittens aren't going to go down easily. No more trips for food have been made, and each kitten has just gotten their last rations for a while. Fences have been fortified, and many kittens in charge of cooking and setting up tents and beds have been turned into attack kittens.

Image above - Rudy, who doesn't want her kittens to get hurt in their removal.

---

Workers from construction sites all over have come over to help their comrades storm this fortress of kittens. Battering rams are being made, and a lot of workers are carrying makeshift clubs. Meanwhile, kittens on Harvey's property have made slingshots, and they are loading them up with dirt and water balloons. However, kittens are nervous, and they are thinking about bringing in the biggest weapon of all. The Kittenpult. It is just a trampoline, but when you angle a trampoline in the right way, and jump off a roof and bounce on it, you can soar many feet in any direction you please.

Twenty kittens made a quick trip to Lunch's house, where the Kittenpult was. Together, they dragged the trampoline all the way back to Harvey's property, after grabbing some snacks. The Kittenpult is being set up right now, and Lunch's kittens, the projectiles, are getting ready to fly. However, there is not much time, as construction workers are advancing at this moment. They have reached the outer fence of Harvey's property, and the battering ram is being brought out. But now, the Kittenpult is about to be unleashed. Stygian has climbed up to the roof, and he is ready to jump. The construction workers are looking up at Stygian right now, confused. Why would a kitten stand on the roof of a house so tall? Their questions were answered when Stygian jumped. He bent his knees, and rocketed into the trampoline. It groaned, but Kittenpulted him over all three layers of fences, and into the fray of construction workers. Stygian took out three cats on impact, and another two when he got up and fought.

---

Image above - Harvey, who hopes there isn't too much carnage outside his house.

---

“This is reaching the scale of a Rudy and Judy fight!”

- MAVIS, WHO THOUGHT NOTHING COULD COMPARE TO A RUDY AND JUDY FIGHT

Stygian was quickly captured and marched away, though. But this made kittens angry. When the workers' battering ram smashed into the first fence, kittens started the attack. A dozen attack kittens charged, ten kittens tossed water balloons, some kittens stayed behind to douse the enemy with water guns, and a few kittens catapulted dirt toward the enemy with slingshots. However, kittens were staying smart, and there were still two dozen more attack kittens waiting behind fences for when they were needed.

Subscribe again for more on this battle!