
CATS ILLUSTRATED

Spring break is coming soon!

Even though it is still a few weeks away, cats are starting to think about spring break. Kittens are ready for a break from school, and adult cats are excited about relaxing, as most cats in Pawsville get spring break off from work. However, cats may be getting a little ahead of themselves in planning what they want to do in their week off from school and work.

Image above - Lunch and her kittens, who can't wait for spring break to come.

"I want to go camping," says Lunch, "I had such a bad experience last time, and I really want to go again!" However, Jake, Lunch's mate, has a different opinion on what he wants to do. "I want to go on a road trip," says Jake, "we could see so many sights and do a lot of cool things!"

Unfortunately for Lunch, most of her kittens are more interested in a road trip than going camping. But this is still two weeks away from when any of this would actually happen, and kittens might change their minds in the future.

Unfortunately, not all kittens are looking forward to spring break. Stripy's kittens, who live in a very academic household, will be taking special classes over spring break. Stripy wants her kittens to be learning at all times, and she does not approve of spring break, as it is a disruption in the learning of kittens. Many other kittens feel sorry for Stripy's kittens, and they would not like to be cooped up in a house taking grammar lessons while your friends were on vacation and school was out. Stripy is adamant in her decision to make her kittens take extra classes, and she is not going to be talked into going on a vacation or cancelling the extra-curricular activities she has scheduled.

During spring break, many cats plan to go to different places. Harvey will be traveling to California to visit one of the top sugar cube factories in the country, and Mavis is going to a religious gathering upstate where the future will be predicted and her destiny may be revealed. Naya will be staying put during spring break, as there will be many empty houses while cats are away on vacations. This fact has already made three families second-guess their travel plans.

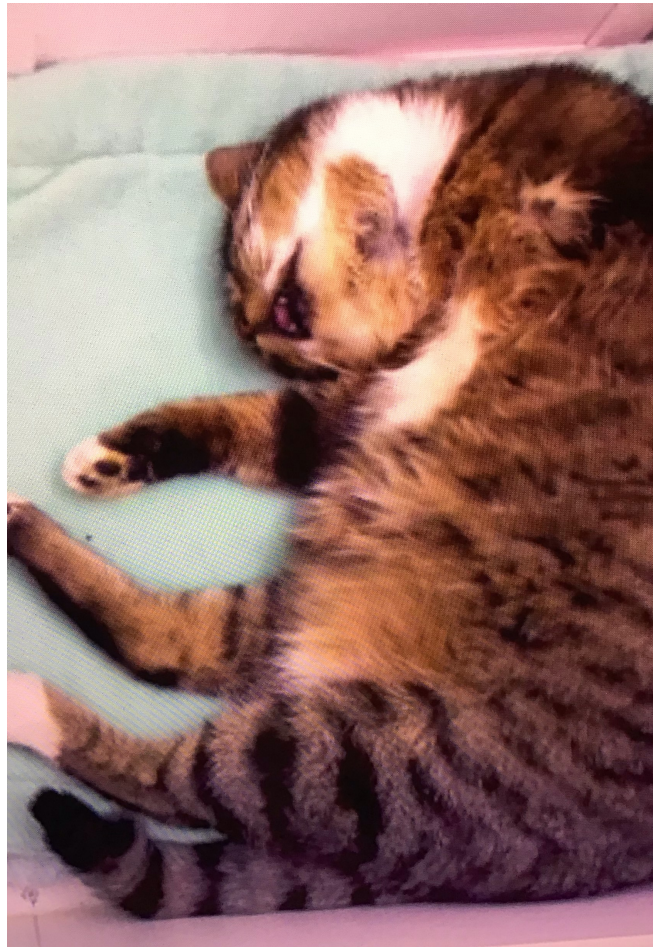

Image above - Harvey, who hopes that the sugar cube factory in California gives out free samples.

“I’m going to put up security cameras and an alarm system before I go on my trip.”

- JULIET

don't have that luxury, as they will basically be in school the whole time.

Even though it is still far away, cats are making plans for spring break as if it were starting tomorrow. Cats will be off on vacation, which means that Pawsville will be very empty — and a bit boring. Juliet will be the first to leave, as she is taking her kittens and Blackpelt on a trip to New York in just over a week. They will be coming back early, and Juliet's kittens will have the rest of spring break to relax. Stripy's kittens

Subscribe again for more on spring break!