
CATS ILLUSTRATED

Naya has made an appearance in Pawsville!

As she thinks that it is close enough to spring break, Naya has made an appearance in Pawsville. Today, she went to the grocery store like a normal cat and actually bought the things she wanted instead of stealing them. And while the grocery store was impressed, parent cats were not. Naya is paying her kittens to tell adult cats who come by her house that she isn't home, so she can delay her punishment a little longer.

Image above - Rudy, who's going to show Naya what happens to cats who steal from her kittens.

Naya's kittens are happy that their mama is back, because that means they might be able to go on a vacation after all. But Naya has other thoughts. She was planning to stay in Pawsville for spring break, where she would have a chance to rob all of the houses she wanted. Cats would be on vacation, their valuables just sitting out in their houses. This is not good news for Naya's kittens, as once Naya has something in her head, it is extremely hard to change her mind.

Lunch is still faced with the dilemma of staying in Pawsville to work at her luncheon, or taking her kittens on a vacation. She had planned to work at her luncheon, but then again, there wouldn't be that much business if cats were away on vacation. But Lunch hadn't done any vacation prep yet, and if she did choose to take her kittens on one, it would be very last-minute and rushed. But while Lunch is wondering about if she should go on a vacation, Juliet, Blackpelt, and their kittens have a plan for theirs. They will be going to an amusement park/ water park, and they will stay in a hotel nearby for three nights. Juliet's kittens are extremely excited for this trip, as they should be.

Mavis's kittens feel the worst about their spring break. Mavis is planning to take them to several different places. A tricycle museum, a famous cabbage market, and to an oracle to help determine their futures. After that, Mavis wants her kittens to be part of a ritual that involves seven hours of meditation and then one hour of prayer.

They are extremely disappointed, and other kittens feel bad for them.

“Seven hours of meditation? We sleep for less than that!”

- MAVIS'S KITTENS, WHO ARE DREADING THE RITUAL

special trip. But we shouldn't talk about that too much, so we don't rub it in for Mavis's kittens.

Subscribe again for more spring break plans!

Image above - Harvey, who might just stay in Pawsville for spring break.

Right now, kittens have mixed feelings about spring break. Some kittens are extremely excited, as they have big trips planned. However, most kittens are not sure what they are going to be doing over spring break, and others are dreading it. But it is a break from school, and that means lots of video games and junk food even if you aren't going on a