CATS ILLUSTRATED

Cats are leaving on trips!

As Spring Break is under way, cats have started leaving on their trips. Juliet is already driving her kittens to the amusement park that they plan to go to, which will definitely be very fun. Lunch has decided that she would like to take her kittens on a small road trip, and she and Jake are packing their car right now. Rudy, Blackspots, and their kittens will be flying out to the ocean later today, where they will relax at a beach for Spring Break.

Mavis and her kittens will also be traveling, but to a less interesting place, at least in the minds of Mavis's kittens. They will be going to an oracle to determine their futures, and they will take part in an eight-hour ritual.

Mavis is excited to share this experience with her kittens, but Mavis's kittens are not excited to be shared with. At least they'll come home midweek, so they will still have a little bit of a break before school starts again.

Naya's kittens will be staying in Pawsville for the whole break. Their mama is still keeping a low profile, though she isn't hiding completely like she was before. Naya's kittens don't mind staying home and playing video games, but even they would rather go somewhere and do something else. Naya is thinking about that too, and maybe she will go somewhere after all. But for now, Naya is getting ready to steal. More than half of the cats in Pawsville are on vacation, which means that there will be a lot of empty houses. Naya has already picked out what she wants, including video game consoles, snacks, pocket money, and items that would be worth a lot online.

Harvey has not gone anywhere yet, but he is thinking about it. North is not extremely busy, and is up for a vacation. However, Harvey doesn't know what he would want to do. Touring a sugar cube factory probably isn't on North's list of things to do during spring break, but a cruise would last a couple of weeks and North may need to work for some portion of that time. Harvey is looking for an option that won't last that long, but will be still fun for both himself and North.

“Oh the riches! There's nothing like breaking into a cat's house and taking what you like!”

Some of our reporters have gone on trips with their family, though I, the writer, will sadly be staying at home for the most of spring break.

Right now we are working with a smaller crew, which makes it harder to follow cats on their vacations. We have a tail on Juliet and Lunch, but Rudy left quickly and was hard to track. No reporter wanted to be the one who followed Mavis, and we'll just have to hear about the experience after they come back.
