Judy is very sick!

As she was experimenting with some chemicals in her basement, Judy must have accidentally consumed some, because now she is sick. She has said that she was looking around for where she put her “food-poisoning brew,” and she did find it. This brew was meant to be used on Rudy but Judy wouldn’t do that in current times. However, she probably wasn’t careful and is now sick because of the stuff.

The brew is designed to make cats get pretty sick for a few days, throwing-up regularly. Judy did try it on Max once, with success. So it does work, and Max can tell Judy that he does not want to relive the few days when he was sick. But the problem is that cats do not know what Judy is sick with, as she was touching many different chemicals in her basement and she could have consumed a mix of them. Right now, Max is paying for the chemicals to be tested in a lab, and then have Judy be tested, to see which chemicals were in her system.

However, some cats doubt if Judy's sickness was self-inflicted. What if one of her kittens saw her messing around with chemicals, panicked, and then poisoned their mama? It may sound far-fetched, but stranger things have happened. Right now, Max is thoroughly questioning each of his kittens, trying to get any information on Judy's situation. But his manner has made his kittens clam up, as they are very afraid that if they reveal anything they will be punished. This is a problem, because if a kitten poisoned their mama, they would probably know what they were using. This could help doctors cure Judy, if they knew what the source of her sickness was.

Meanwhile, Harvey is still looking at house options, and is thinking about buying one of the lots in the new development. There are many options for different style houses Harvey can get, and he is looking at some right now with Makenna. During this time, the condition of his house has deteriorated fast. Smoke discovered some mildew in the corners of his room yesterday, and Reposado noticed some serious water damage while they were painting. Harvey has decided that he will move, but he doesn't know where yet.

There is a lot of unknown right now, with new housing, sickness, and fighting. Mavis and Juliet seem to have cooled off temporarily, but Mavis is still setting aside cabbages and labeling them “let rot then use as ammunition,” and Juliet is bribing her kittens to spy on Mavis's kittens.
