
CATS ILLUSTRATED

Rudy has been playing the lottery!

In the past few weeks, Rudy has been playing the lottery quite a bit. Blackspots does not know why, and many cats are curious about Rudy's intentions.

Image above - Judy, who doesn't think the lottery is worth it.

Different cats have different ideas to explain this change in behavior. "I think that Rudy is trying her luck because I won the lottery," says Lunch, who won the lottery last year, "maybe she thinks that luck runs in the family, and that she will win the lottery too." A lot of cats agree with Lunch, but others agree with Harvey. "I think that Rudy might have just started playing the lottery for fun, and then she got addicted to it," says Harvey. It seems like a plausible theory. Some cats agree with Harvey, but still, they are waiting for an answer from Rudy to find out the real reason behind this.

Rudy has admitted that she thought that because Lunch won the lottery, then she might win too. And now, she has gotten a bit addicted to playing it, as she loves the thrill of watching the results for the lottery being announced. However, Blackspots has told Rudy that she can watch the results of the lottery without actually playing in it, which Rudy didn't think of. She has decided that she could be okay with just doing that, which resolved the issue. Right now, cats are losing interest in this topic, and are moving on to other things like the state testing coming up for kittens, the blooming feud between Mavis and Juliet, and North's job as a realtor.

Speaking of North's job, we have some news to tell. Because of how well he is selling the plots of land in the new development, the developers have offered North a job as a full-time realtor. However, he turned them down. He told them that he could do part-time, but not full time. North also does love his job at Behavior and Co., and he isn't ready to leave quite yet. But the developers snapped up his offer, and North may be doing more realty work in the future.

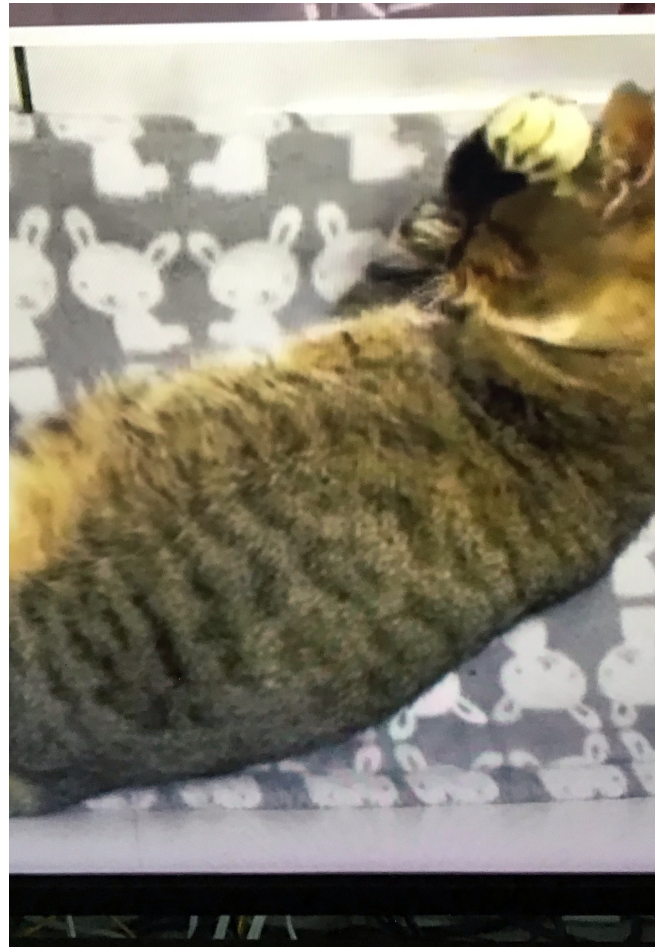

Image above - Harvey, who doesn't want to see North leave Behavior and Co.

“I love the thrill of the lottery, but I don't love the fact that I can't steal the prize money.”

- NAYA

Kittens are also getting ready to do state testing, which will be fun for some, but stressful for others. But however the actual test goes, parent cats will be supporting their kittens, and buying them a large treat once it has finished. This is the saving grace for the kittens who will not have fun during the test, and for others, it is the cherry on top of a very good experience. And as a bonus, the test results don't come back until August, which means that there will have to be two separate celebrations for it.

Subscribe again for more on the lottery!