
CATS ILLUSTRATED

Harvey has bought a house in the new development!

After many hours of thinking, planning, and relaxing, Harvey has finally come to the decision that he wants to buy a house in the new development. Makenna and North have been helping Harvey plan out his move, as it is a very big and hard thing to do.

Image above - Lunch, who knows that this is a big step for Harvey.

Harvey will be leaving a lot of things behind, like his therapy office. However, there may still be hope of building a new one in his new house's backyard, though it would have to be pretty small. If Harvey could stay at his house he would, but it has too many problems and more are appearing by the day. The house was built a long time ago, so many modern features were not included. But in Harvey's new house, there will be a large bathtub, air conditioning, and a good heater. Harvey's old house has a barely-functioning heater, and he would be in trouble if the temperatures were still cold. However, his lack of air conditioning is also starting to become a problem.

Harvey even got a deal on his new house, as North is still working as a realtor for the developers of the new house complex outside of Pawsville. Harvey's house is going to be finished in a month, as there has already been construction of new houses going on. However, that means that Harvey will still have to face the heat of summer in his current house, which is daunting. Maybe he will decide to spend the day in his refrigerator after all when the temperatures hit eighty or higher again. Harvey is currently out buying some fans, as he will be relying heavily on them during hot days if he isn't already in the refrigerator.

Other cats are preparing for the next heatwave, too, and they are stocking up on cold drinks and cold treats. You almost never see ice cream in stock at the grocery store these days, and popsicles are also selling well. Mavis's kittens and Rudy's kittens are still competing to corner the market for cold drinks, and they have really upped their games. Rudy's kittens have created their own mix of soda, which has been very popular with cats. Mavis's kittens have bottled their lemonade and are selling six packs of it, which looks very professional in the eyes of an adult cat.

“By running a big business and not paying taxes, we’re tax evaders!”

- RUDY’S KITTENS, WHO SOUND PLEASED

Harvey has made a big decision here, and cats are making sure to show support for it. Even Naya has said that she would not steal from Harvey's new house for a few days after he gets it, which may seem small but is about as good as it gets from a cat like Naya.

Subscribe again for more on Harvey's new house!

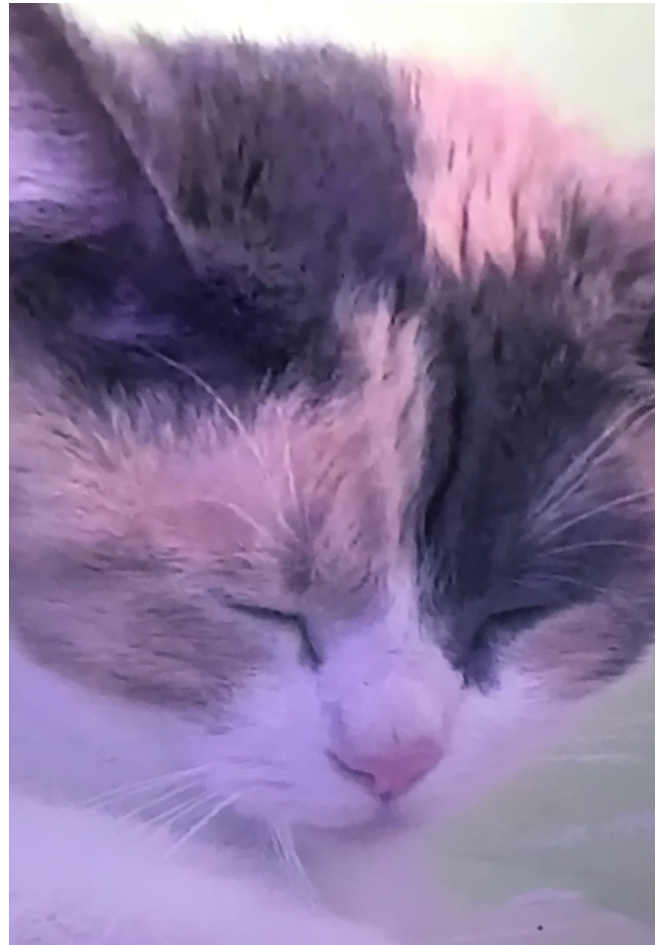

Image above - Juliet, who has to sleep overnight at the grocery store to be the first one in line on the day of the ice cream restock.