
CATS ILLUSTRATED

Lunch's Luncheon is changing its menu drastically!

As it is summertime, and Lunch knows that cats want different things to eat, she is changing up her menu drastically with the help of her employees. She does not want them to have to toil over hot oil during eighty-degree days, so there will be some serious menu changes.

Image above - Judy, who's never seen a change as big as this.

First of all, almost all of the fried food will go. Even sugar fries would leave the menu temporarily, and they would be replaced with cold chicken sandwiches, chilled soup, and more. Cats are very curious to try out these new menu items, though some cats are sad that their favorite dishes were taken off. Lunch is also serving Mavis's kittens' bottled lemonade, because they could always use another cold drink. She is also adding a whole selection of iced sodas, which are basically glasses of soda with shaved ice poured in them. On top of that, Lunch has bought more fans for her Luncheon, so it can be kept cooler.

Today, cats went to Lunch's Luncheon to try out some of the new stuff. Rudy got a cold chicken sandwich, which she thought was actually pretty good, and Juliet got a chilled soup, which was nice but wasn't as good as hot soup to her. However, some cats found new favorites. North is loving the new caviar salad (chilled of course), and kittens have focused in on the cold fruit platters, which were surprisingly sweet. This menu change will be here through the heat of the summer, and Lunch may even decide to bring it back next year, if it seems to go well and be popular.

Harvey is sad that sugar fries were taken off of the menu, but he may have found a replacement. Cold fruit kabobs dipped in a bit of sugar were heavenly, with a nice fruity taste but lots of sugar to go with them. Harvey isn't sure if these would be a replacement for sugar fries, as they are so different, but they can definitely substitute for them during the summer. Cats are happy that Harvey has found a good sugary thing on this menu that he likes, as this is a very popular change, and some cats are even going as far as wondering if it should be permanent.

Image above - Rudy, who really likes this menu, but doesn't know if it should be permanent.

“This may be popular in the summer, but cats will want warm things in the winter.”

- LUNCH, REASONING WITH HERSELF

This is the first time that Lunch's Luncheon has ever done a menu change, and it is definitely helping The Wish for Fish. There were always cats who preferred Lunch's Luncheon's fish over The Wish for Fish's fish (I know, how is that possible). But now, The Wish for Fish gets one hundred percent of the business from cats who want fried fish, as they are now the only restaurant that serves that in town, at least currently.

Subscribe again for more menu changes!