

---

CATS ILLUSTRATED

---

Stripy is renting out her hot tub!

As she is not using it, and needs extra money to help pay for her documentary, Stripy is renting out her hot tub. Any cat renting it can just go to her backyard anytime they want and relax in the hot tub. The hot tub has water temperature settings, jets, and Stripy is throwing in a few bottles of bubble bath soap for an extra price.

Image above - Harvey, who would love to rent the hot tub.

---

Many cats have rushed to rent this hot tub, and it has turned into a bit of a fight. Cats kept saying that they would rent it for more than what any other cat offered, until the prices were unreasonably high and Stripy said that none of the fighting cats could rent the hot tub until they worked out who was going to rent it first. That left space for other cats to rent it, and Mavis swooped in to rent the hot tub for the rest of the day. She is in it right now, and Stripy's kittens have reported hearing splashes and laughter from outside. It seems that Mavis is reliving some old childhood fun while playing in the hot tub.

Mavis's experience has attracted other cats, and Harvey told Stripy that he would rent the hot tub after Mavis was done with it. Harvey has heard rumors of her experience, and he would love to splash around in a bubble bath again. Other adult cats are thinking similar things, and this is not making their kittens happy, who are not old enough to rent the hot tub by Stripy's rules. Right now, most kittens feel like their parents are rubbing that fact in their face, which might not be completely false this time. Still, kittens would rather go to the pool, as it is bigger with more space to splash around. The pool would be better if it had bubbles, and this fact has gotten kittens plotting ways to sneak bubble bath soap into the town pool.

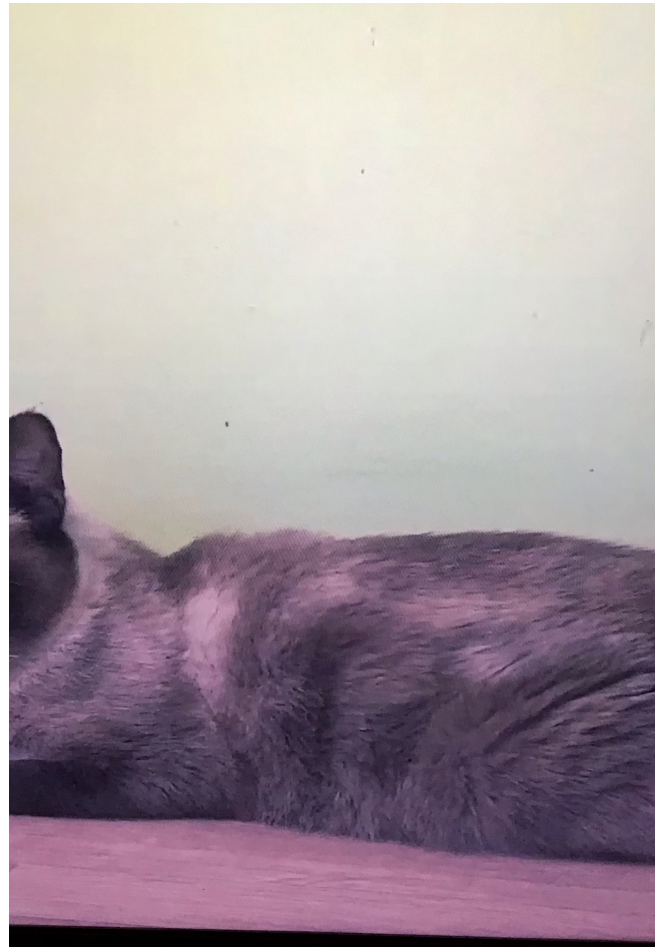

Image above - Lunch, who also thinks that the town pool would be more fun if it had bubbles.

Stripy's documentary is still in the works, though Stripy confided in Harvey that it is going very well. However, she will be relying on some income after the documentary is published, to pay off some filming debts. Renting out the hot tub does not pay that much, but it helps a little financially. That decision has definitely benefited other cats as well, as they are just coming to terms with the fact that the idea of a hot tub was ingenious.

“It’s too bad the hot tub is too big to steal.”

- NAYA, WHO IS GENUINELY DISAPPOINTED

Temperatures will be heating up in the next two days, and cats are stocking up on cold things to eat and drink. Cats are scrambling to rent the hot tub in the days after tomorrow, and getting on Rudy's good side so she will let them use her pool. Rudy's pool is also a very popular place to cool off and relax, if you are willing to pay a price.

Subscribe again for more on hot tubs!