

---

CATS ILLUSTRATED

---

The state wants to build a military base in Pawsville!

As it is in the middle of nowhere, and there are no bases nearby, the state wants to build a military base in Pawsville. Cats heard about this through a special notification sent to their catPhones. However, many cats are against this base, but for different reasons.

Image above - Lunch, who thinks that this base would have a bad influence on kittens.

---

"I don't want a military base in Pawsville because it might encourage kittens to join the military," says Juliet, who is very concerned, "I don't want my kittens joining the military, and I don't want them to see what a military base looks like so they don't get any ideas." Some cats agree with Juliet, but others agree with Lunch even more. "If there is a military base in Pawsville,” says Lunch, “does that mean that there will be the chance of an attack on Pawsville? I don’t want to have to live in the middle of a potential war zone.” Cats are very concerned that this military base will cause some bad things to happen, and influence kittens in the wrong way.

Unfortunately for adult cats, this talk of war coming to Pawsville has only made kittens more interested in the military base. At their young age, kittens look up to patriotic figures, especially soldiers. Most kittens actually want the base to be built now. However, adult cats are doing what they can to stop the construction. It would take around six months anyway, but adult cats have managed to put together a lawsuit that gives them an extra month before construction begins. The state could easily overrule that kind of thing, but they let it go ahead so that adult cats don’t get too discouraged in their effort.

Naya opposes this new military base, but for a different reason. She is worried that the soldiers will have the authority to arrest her, and she wouldn’t get to do as much crime. However, Naya has realized that they would just be an obstacle, and she would just have a fun challenge ahead of her if the military base was built. Naya has even gone to the side that supports this new military base, as she wants to feel challenged to steal and wants to see if she can steal from an official military base.

“I can’t wait to have soldiers in town who we can play pranks on!”

- MAVIS’S KITTENS, WHO MUST BE VERY BOLD

would probably love the extra challenge of stealing from it. Her kittens might try it too, though they would probably be caught.

Subscribe again for more on this new military base!

Image above - Rudy, who doesn’t care if the military base is built or not.