
CATS ILLUSTRATED

Temperatures in Pawsville have shot up again!

True to the forecast, the temperatures in Pawsville have shot up yet again. Cats have been trying to stay in their houses and move as little as they can, to stay cool. However, this doesn't work too well. No adult cats are feeling up to making lunch, which means that kittens have raided the freezer for cold treats instead of eating something healthy for lunch. But adult cats are too hot to tell their kittens otherwise.

Image above - Lunch, who can't stand the heat.

This heat wave has sparked up the lemonade/soda war between Mavis's kittens and Rudy's kittens again, and they have been trying to get all of the business for themselves. However, Mavis's kittens had an idea. They have met with Rudy's kittens to discuss business, and they are proposing that they join companies to create the ultimate drinks business. Rudy's kittens have agreed, and now, with more kittens working, they have even added a delivery service. There is a phone number you can call, and a kitten will answer, take your order, and you will get cold drinks delivered straight to your house. This delivery service has made buying cold drinks very popular, and Rudy's kittens and Mavis's kittens are happy that they decided to work together.

Even though Mavis's kittens and Rudy's kittens were making a killing selling cold things, other kittens have been discouraged by one certain fact. They had to wear sunscreen if they were going to spend that much time outside. Sunscreen is not a pleasant thing to have on your fur, and kittens are trying to avoid wearing it as much as possible. Mavis's kittens and Rudy's kittens have constructed a bicycle with an umbrella covering it so that any kitten making deliveries would not have to wear sunscreen. The other kittens have set up a lab in Mavis's shed, where they are making the drinks that they are selling to adult cats.

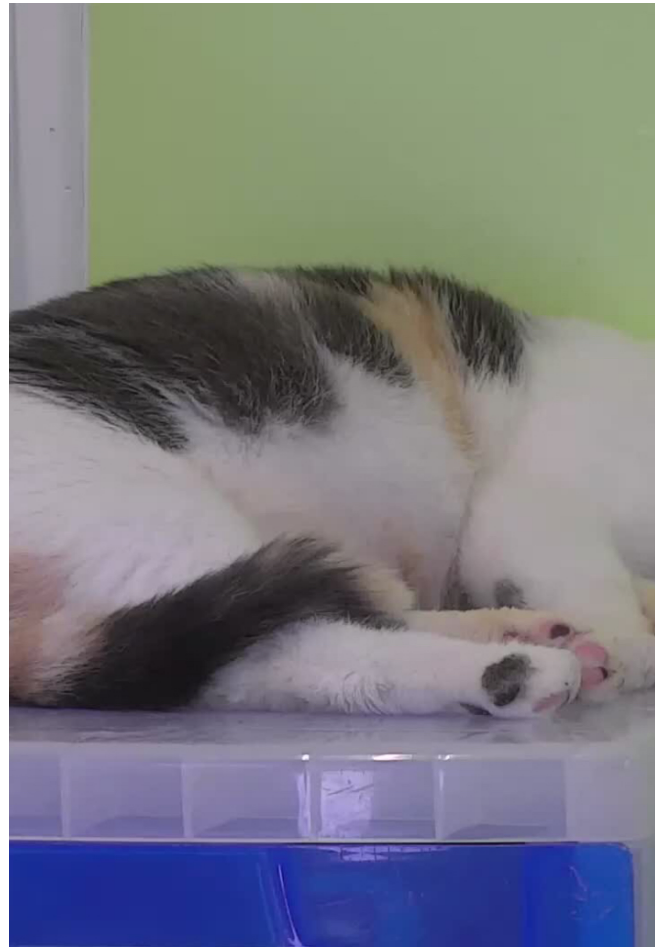

Image above - Rudy, who's tried to claim a free soda for being the mother of kittens in the drink business.

“Exploitation?” What is this, a criminal journal?”

- JULIET

Harvey and North have bought a lot of drinks from kittens, and they will be happy to buy more. North and Harvey have started boxing things up, which is tiring work. Makenna is moving the furniture around so that there is more space to store moving boxes, and she is a big fan of Mavis's kittens' lemonade. And though it might not be the best thing to do, kittens are taking advantage of other cats' toiling to try and sell them drinks.

The temperatures are high again in Pawsville, and kittens are hoping that summer break will come fast. Then they won't have to worry about getting up and going to school in the morning, so they can relax all day.

Subscribe again for more exploitation!